NEW ST. LOUIS FAIR OPEN WITH ALL THE OLD-TIME FEATURES

Mothers and Babies Much in Evidence on First Day When Mothers' Congress Baby Show Is Held, Awards Being Announced in Afternoon.

REVIVAL OF RUNNING RACES AN ATTRACTION

Aeroplane Exhibitions and Trial of the New Unicycle, for Which Great Speed Is Promised, Among Things on Program.

Several thousand persons were at the New St. Louis Fair, on the St. Charles Rock road, a short distance west of Wellston, Monday afternoon. It was the opening day of a week's revival of the famous annual fair of former days.

One of the big features of the opening day was the baby show under the direction of the Mothers' Congress. After the visitors to the fair had had a good chance to view the babies, the judges began announcing their awards at 2 p. m.

The first prize for triplets was awarded to Arthur, Mildred and Mabel Bachman, children of Mr. and Mrs. M. Bachman of 4533 West Papin street.

In the twins class the general prize went to Rosemary and Dorothy Dreyer, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Dreyer of 6508 Hobard street.

For twins from 6 months to 1 year old the prize went to Girard and Barrett Crosby, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crosby of 1325 Walton avenue.

In this class the second prize was awarded to Robert and Worchester Heimbuscher and the third prize to Grace and Gladys Golden.

Babies Win Two Prizes.

The first prize for twins from 13 to 24 months old was won by Herman and Harold Bromschwig, sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bromschwig, 1314 Walton avenue, and the second prize by Marie and Elizabeth Brady. The Bromschwig twins also won the second general prize for all twins entered.

Rosemary and Dorothy Dreyer also won the first prize for twins from 3 to 4 years old. The second prize in that class went to Corwin and Wallace Riddle, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Riddle of 4059 Kennerly avenue.

Other awards were:

Most perfect baby, Harold Hibbert, son of A. H. Hibbert of 6706 Arsenal street, first rated at 99.98; Elizabeth Walker, daughter of William Walker of 5040 Vernon avenue, second, rated at 99.54, and Maurice Kitchell, son of Edwin Kitchell, 3630 South Broadway, third, rated at 99.28.

Boys under 1 year—Maurice Kitchell, first; John W. Cross Jr., second, and Ben Altheimer Jr., third.

Girls under 1 year—Christine Bauer, first; Dorothy McWilliams, second, and Jane Veach, third.

It had been announced that mothers who were to exhibit their babies at the baby show in the afternoon would be admitted free if their babies wore the official pink and blue ribbons showing they were entrants.

The gatemen apparently had heard nothing of this arrangement, and about a dozen mothers who arrived early were kept waiting outside the gate until Mrs. James Nugent, one of the committee in charge of the baby show, arrived and admitted them to the grounds.

A burning cigarette stub thrown into a patch of dried grass started a miniature prairie fire which threatened a group of exhibit tents shortly after noon. The blaze, driven by a strong breeze, swept across a quadrangle, around which about 15 of the tents are pitched, and a vigorous fight was necessary to save the canvas city.

Scores of exhibitors, assisted by spectators, beat out the fire with boards, blankets and rolls of canvas. No damage of any consequence was done.

Many Features for Children.

The day's program included many features, some of them of special attraction for the boys and girls who were admitted free, if accompanied by older persons.

Among the events on the card were horse and mule races, aeroplane flights and wild west exhibitions, including broncho busting and lariat throwing.

A feature of the fair that promised to arouse great interest is the revival of horse racing. These are the first running contests seen in or around St. Louis in more than seven years.

The aeroplane program provides for daily flights by Benedict, Korn or Jannus in Benoist machines.

Daily demonstrations of the newly invented unicycle, said to have marvelous speed possibilities, will also be given.

As at the old St. Louis Fair, the event of the week will be Big Thursday, when there will be many added attractions.

To reach the fair grounds it is necessary to pay 10 cents car fare and no trolley line runs direct to the grounds from the downtown district. All Hamilton line cars run through to the grounds. Transfers to the Hamilton line may be obtained on east and west lines. A second fare is paid after passing the city limits. All St. Charles line cars also run to the fair grounds.

RUSHING TO CLASS, RUNS INTO AN AUTO

ADDIE RENAUD

Child Trying to Keep Unbroken Clear Record for Five Terms Knocked Down.

Addie Renaud, 13 years old, 1908 Park avenue, feared she would be late for school Monday, and left her home running. As she hurried across the street in front of the house, her head down, she ran into a passing automobile.

She was hurled to the street and stunned. The car, which belongs to Charles F. Prante, 3439 Halliday avenue, was driven by his son, Alvin, a student in the St. Louis Commercial College. The injured child and her sister, Hattie, were taken into the auto and driven to the city hospital dispensary.

Dispensary Surgeon Lutz dressed several lacerations of the scalp and said there was a possibility of a fracture of the skull. Addie refused to remain at the hospital for further examination and was taken to her home.

Prante was arrested. Robert Hawkins, a witness, told the police that the auto was going slowly and that the girl ran into its rear wheel. Physicians at the hospital say Abbie and her sister also gave this version of the accident.

Because of this accident Abbie was compelled to miss her first day at school in five terms. She was trying to maintain a reputation for punctuality when she was hurt.

GIVES NAME THREE WAYS AND IS REFUSED LICENSE

Would-Be Bridegroom From East St. Louis Becomes Mix-Up at Belleville.

A man who accompanied a woman giving her name as Mathilda Bartlett of East St. Louis was refused a marriage license in Belleville Monday afternoon because he could give the clerk no assurance as to which of three names he gave was correct.

When the man approached Marriage License Clerk Bocquet, he said he was Alfred W. McIlwaine, 49 years old, of East St. Louis. The woman accompanying him gave her age as 48. Bocquet filled out the proper blank, containing an oath for the man to sign. He signed it "Frank Mackaway." Bocquet called his attention to the difference in names and the man said:

"Oh, I made a mistake. Scratch that out."

Bocquet did so, and the man signed it "J. A. Mackaway."

"Well, what is your name?" Bocquet asked. "That makes three different ones now.' Again the man protested he had made a mistake, and this time signed the oath Frank Mackaway.

Bocquet refused to issue the license, and the couple announced they would procure one in East St. Louis.

PEOPLE CLIMB TREES TO HEAR T. R. IN KANSAS

He Tells Them That the Bleachers Are Going to See Game Is Run Fairly.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Sept. 23.—A large crowd gathered in the public square to hear Col. Roosevelt speak here today. People who were unable to get close enough to the platform to hear him climbed trees and telephone poles, and a crowd of boys swarmed on top of a threshing machine. In the crush one woman fainted and Col. Roosevelt sent his physician to care for her.

In his speech, Col. Roosevelt defended the recall of judicial decisions. He also referred to his tilt last spring with Congressman Campbell of Kansas after the Congressman expressed the opinion that the Colonel was "appealing to the bleachers."

"To invert language that has been given some fame in your own district," said Col. Roosevelt, "we intend that the people shall not merely sit on the bleachers and look at the game, we intend that the people shall run the game."

H. W. SAMUELS IS FREED

Former Insurance Co. Collecter Was Accused of Embezzling

H. W. Samuels, a former collector for the Western Life and Accident Insurance Co., was discharged by Judge Miller, Monday, when arraigned on a charge of embezzling $3.75 from the company. Judge Miller said the evidence against him was insufficient.

THIRD SISTER ENDS LIFE BECAUSE OF UNREQUITED LOVE

Sedalia Girl, 16 Years Old, Kills Herself by Drinking a Cup of Lye.

ONE DIED IN ST. LOUIS

Father, F. C. Dunton, in Penitentiary for Killing Admirer of One of Girls.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 23.—Minnie Dunton, the third of the daughters of Frank C. Dunton to end her life because of unrequited love, died here today from the effect of a cup of lye which she drank last night.

She was 16 years old.

Her sister, Daisy Dunton, was 17 when she ended her life in 1903 because of disappointment in her love for Emil Meyer, a street car motorman.

An older sister, Jennie, took her own life in St. Louis several years ago, and it was said her act also was the result of disappointment in love.

When Daisy Dunton killed herself, her father killed Meyer, her admirer, for which he is serving a 28-year term in the Missouri penitentiary.

Neighbors say that the sisters were unusually fond of one another, and that the act of self-destruction by the first of the girls made a deep impression upon the two remaining sisters, so that when Daisy's admirer ceased to return her affection she was influenced to take her own life. And now the third of the sisters has followed their example.

VENICE A DILAPIDATED DISAPPOINTMENT TO HIM

Judge Grimm Back From Europe Calls Munich All "Beer and Art."

Judge J. Hugo Grimm returned to his work in the Circuit Court Monday, after a vacation abroad. He and Mrs. Grimm went to Europe June 19 and returned Sunday. They visited the British Isles and nearly all the Continental countries, but Judge Grimm says he found nothing that pleased him quite as well as America.

Judge Grimm and Mrs. Grimm went up the cog road from Chamounix to the top of Mont Blanc and walked across ice and snow when it was midsummer in the valleys. An Englishman and his wife fell from a precipice and were killed the day the Grimms were there.

Other points visited by the Grimms were Rome, where they were in a crowd of 75 that received the Pope's blessing; Venice, which the Judge declared to be a dilapidated disappointment; Munich, which he described as "all art and beer," and Coblenz, Germany, where Judge Grimm's ancestors came from and where his great-great-grandfather's house still is standing.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY'S DEVICE CATCHES A THIEF AT CASH TILL

Buzzer and Alarm Clock Warn; Negro in Room, and Drawer Is Open.

LAD A McKINLEY STUDENT

Safe in Office of Main Street Store Pried Open, Contracts, Stamps and Valuables Taken.

A burglar trap designed by a McKinley High School student caught a negro Monday morning, who was at the cash drawer of the Schroeder Coal Co., 2925 South Broadway.

For several weeks the company had complained of thefts of stamps and change. Philip Marsh, manager of the South Side Bank Building, in which the offices are located, asked his son Paul to help him catch the thief.

Paul's scientific studies at McKinley High enabled him to rig up an alarm clock with buzzer attachment, connected by wires with the cash drawer. Whenever the drawer is opened, the buzzer sounds and the clock stops.

Watch for an Outsider.

The clock was put in the offices of the Manufacturers' Railway, on the same floor with the coal company. Several days' observation showed that the cash drawer was never opened by any Schroeder employe except the person authorized to open it. So a watch was arranged for outside of business hours.

S. J. Sullivan, roadmaster of the railway company, heard the buzzer sound at 6:30 a. m. He ran into the Schroeder offices and found Walter Scott, negro janitor for the Diesel Engine Co., which has offices on another floor. Scott was in the act of closing the cash drawer.

Sullivan detained the negro until policemen arrived. Scott was searched and $1.05 worth of stamps, some small change, three pocket knives and several trinkets were found in his pockets.

Denies Opening Drawer.

Scott said he had heard of the thefts in the coal offices and that when he looked in there he saw the cash drawer open. He said he closed the cash drawer and supposed this must have started the buzzer in the other room. He said he found the stamps in a waste basket and had put them in his pocket to give to the cashier.

Manager Marsh said the negro had no business in any office on that floor. Scott was taken to the Wyoming Street Police Station.

STANDARD STILL ASSIGNS TERRITORY FOR SALES

Clerk of New Jersey Corporation Testifies Subsidiaries Get Certain Sections.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey is still assigning sales territory to oil refineries of its former subsidiaries outside of its own territory, according to testimony given today at the hearing of the Waters Pierce Standard Oil litigation, by Kenneth Adams, assignment clerk of the New Jersey company.

MADE FORTUNE IN UNION DEPOT DRUG STORE; DIES POOR

End Comes at City Hospital to Walter E. Berryman, Known for Liberality.

TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF

Life Was Saved at Hospital After He Drank Acid at Scene of Former Success.

Walter E. Berryman, 48 years old, who made a fortune from the drug store in Union Station and was known to hundreds as a "good fellow" because of his willingness to lend or give money, died almost penniless at the city hospital Sunday evening.

Berryman tried to kill himself at the Terminal Hotel Aug. 8 by taking carbolic acid. Although he lay in his room 24 hours without medical attention, the hospital physicians saved his life. He had diluted the acid with liquor, they explained, thereby greatly lessening its effect. They discovered, however, that he had an ulcer of the stomach, and that was the cause of his death.

"I made money so fast that I hardly knew what to do with it," Berryman once remarked to a Post-Dispatch reporter while recovering from the effects of the acid. "The World's Fair crowds and the Sunday excursion crowds after the fair literally poured a deluge of money into my tills. Then the lid was put on, the Sunday crowds quit coming and my business dwindled."

At the height of his prosperity Berryman extended his business by acquiring two West End drug stores, in addition to his Union Station property. The ventures proved a failure and, at last, broken in health, he became a bankrupt. He also fell out with his wife and a separation resulted.

He then became a traveling salesman for a wholesale drug house and while traveling in the South contracted malaria, from which he was unable to wholly free himself. He returned to St. Louis without funds and the management of the Terminal Hotel, because of long friendship, gave him a temporary home.

Scores of trainmen and station attaches attribute Berryman's failure to his liberality. He would lend money in almost any sum to any acquaintance, they say, and many failed to repay him. When cases of destitution were discovered among the travelers at the station, Berryman always was one of the most liberal contributors for their relief. All these drains finally depleted his business, they say.

Berryman's father, J. E. Berryman of Marshall, Mo., will arrive Monday night to take the body to Marshall for burial.

STOLEN $55,000 FOUND AT BANK'S BACK DOOR

Telephone Message Tells Where to Look for It, but Janitor Alone Makes Investigation.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Sept. 23.—The package containing $55,000 which was stolen from an express car on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad last week, was found at the back door of the First National Bank this morning by the negro janitor.

The finding of the money was preceded by a telephone message received at the bank to the effect that the money would be found in the back yard. Officials paid no attention to the tip, but the negro began an investigation. The money was turned over to the Southern Express Co.

Mrs. Hank Weeke Gives Third Chapter of "Poker and Politics"

Policeman Wouldn't Play in $50 Game

Bathed Him Like a Baby—In Pajamas He'd Pout All Day if She Didn't Clothe Him.

Mrs. Nellie J. Weeke, who is suing her husband, "Hank" Weeke, Republican city committeeman, for divorce, gave reporters Monday the third installment of her story of "Poker and Politics" as she witnessed the games played.

Mrs. Weeke says the informal poker club held its sessions sometimes over Hank Weeke's various saloons, and at other times at his home at 2327 St. Louis avenue.

The club met each Saturday at 2 p. m. and played until various hours Sunday morning.

In this installment Mrs. Weeke tells how the police were so friendly to the game that [illegible] plain-clothes policeman from the Laclede Avenue Station was frequently a spectator and took dinner with the poker players, and a sympathetic Sergeant of the North Market Street Station tipped off a friend how to get a hand in the game.

Cared for Hank Like a Baby.

Mrs. Weeke also devotes a chapter in this installment to telling how she had to take care of Hank. She says the political ward boss and saloon keeper was as helpless in caring for himself as an infant.

She says she had to wash his face as she would a baby, put on his shoes and stockings and tie his necktie. She says she shaved him every day of the five years of their married life with the exception of the days on which he would have his hair cut and then the barber would shave him.

When she was away for a week or so, Mrs. Weeke says, part of the job of dressing Hank in the morning fell on Al Thomson, one of the poker players. Thomson, she says, tied his ties for two weeks. Weeke would not dress himself, Mrs. Weeke says, and if she demurred he would sit around the house all day in his pajamas and peeve and pout until she did dress him.

Policeman Shied at $50 Game.

"We had the saloon at Rankin and Laclede avenues," said Mrs. Weeke, "when the friendly plain clothesman used to come in on Saturday nights to eat and watch the poker players in the room upstairs. He called the first time to get his month's pay check cashed. Hank cashed it for him and then said:

" 'Now come on and sit in and we'll take that change away from you.'

" 'No, thanks,' returned the policeman, 'no $50 games for me. Put out a nickel ante table and I'll take a hand.'

"This sally of the policeman set the players in a roar of laughter and they started in to josh him unmercifully.

" 'This must be a cheap Police Department,' one said.

" 'What's the matter with the graft these days?' asked Nat Goldstein.

Policeman Came Often.

"But the policeman would not be kidded into getting into a game where he had to buy $50 worth of chips to get a seat. However, he came often and got quite interested looking on. He got into the habit of coming every Saturday night for supper. He would stay about an hour, go out and come back. But they never got him into the game.

"We had lots of evidence that the police were wise to the game. One Saturday night Ben Kline, a huckster who is wealthy and who is one of Hank's ward leaders, came over to the saloon at Rankin and Laclede avenues, looking for the poker game.

"I had gone up the street and when I came back Kline was talking to the bartender and trying to find out from him how he could get into the game. The bartender was playing "dunce," as Hank had instructed him to do.

"Kline turned to me and asked me about the game. I answered him evasively and went upstairs and told Hank. He told me to go down and tell Kline that the game was down at the Planters Hotel.

"Kline went to the Planters looking for the poker game, but of course did not find it there that night. Sunday he was around to see us at the house. He told Hank he had been hunting for the game, and Hank asked him how he knew there was a game.

Sergeant Told of Game.

" 'Why, a Sergeant over at the North Market Street Station told me,' replied Kline, naming the Sergeant.

" 'Well, we did have a game over the saloon last night,' admitted Hank. Then he added: 'But, look here, Ben, those are pretty classy fellows playing in that game and they couldn't afford to be seen by an outsider. Now some night when I have a game for fellows of your class, I'll invite you in!'

"That seemed to suit Kline all right and he didn't make any further attempt to break into the 'classy' crowd. The only thing he said was:

" 'They wouldn't have got any of my money. I'd have trimmed that bunch.'

"But the police were not the only ones who knew all about the poker game. Howard Sidener, the Prosecuting Attorney and candidate on the Republican ticket for Circuit Attorney, was one of the most regular sitters-in. They called Howard "The Child of the Club."

"Howard came to be dubbed the child in this way: You know he looks so young and innocent, with big baby eyes. Well, one night I had to go into the poker room to use the telephone. When I went in Howard said:

" 'Well, you'll be a friend of mine,

AUTENRIETH TO GET MARTIN'S PLACE AS ASST. POSTMASTER

Man Who Has Held the $4000 Position to Take Job as Inspector at $1800, A Year, Declaring Resignation to Be Voluntary on His Part.

SUCCESSOR BEATEN AS ESSEN CANDIDATE

Important Cog in State-Federal Republican Machine and Strong Effort Was Made to Nominate Him as Sheriff.

Evi F. Martin is to resign his $4000 job as Assistant Postmaster at St. Louis to take an $1800 job as Postoffice Inspector. Both he and Postmaster Akins say the resignation is voluntary on Martin's part.

To succeed Martin, Akins announced Monday that he would appoint Albert Auterieth to the assistant postmastership. Autenrieth is a political ally of Fred Essen, St. Louis County boss who, with Akins and Congressman Bartholdt, is an important cog in the Federal-State Republican machine.

Akins told a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday that no recommendation for a change had been received, but said that Martin had received "a very flattering offer to enter the inspection department.

At that moment Auterieth, who is Superintendent of the Money Order Division, was at Martin's desk going over the work to be done in that department. Martin corroborated his chief's statement that his demotion is voluntary.

Others at the Federal Building received the news with surprise. There was much speculation as to what could induce a man voluntarily to give up a $4000 job for an $1800 one. Martin's only comment upon this was that he likes the inspection work better.

Old Place Waited for Him.

Autenrieth's present salary is $2400. Last spring he resigned to make the race for Sheriff in St. Louis County. During his absence his place was not filled. After he had been defeated in the primaries he found his old job awaiting him.

In this election Autenrieth was Essen's candidate against George A. Bode in one of the bitterest fights St. Louis County has known. Autenrieth was picked out as the strongest possible candidate by the Essen machine and every effort of that air-tight political organization was bent upon putting him across.

Bode's election was by a small margin but it was a hard blow to the Essen machine. A rallying call was sent out to all the machine's supporters and there was a general tightening of the lines for the fall election.

St. Louis County forms a large part of Congressman Bartholdt's district. Every effort will be made there to return Bartholdt to Congress with the biggest possible majority. There has been talk of Bull Moose defection in the county, but the machine leaders have not determined what it will amount to.

Akins Praises Martin.

Akins praised Martin's efficiency highly, but said he was not disposed to stand in the Assistant Postmaster's way if he desires to take the other job at the greatly reduced salary.

"He came to this department," said Akins, "with a promise he could return to the Inspection Department at any time he wished. He and I have been like brothers and I don't think it possible to find a man who can quite replace him. The civil service would make it impossible to remove him from this place against his will except for good cause. That shows in itself that his withdrawal is voluntary."

"I wanted to get back to my old work," Martin said. "I like it and can do it better than anything else. There has been no friction between me and the postmaster. He has been like a father to me."

Akins denied there was any politics back of the change and said Congressman Bartholdt knows nothing about it.

Autenrieth has been connected with the St. Louis postoffice since Postmaster Wyman's days. He was superintendent of the money order department until he had friction with Wyman, when he was transferred to the Fairgrounds postal station. Akins reinstated him in his old job.

Since he returned after the recent primaries, Autenrieth has been nominally back in the old position at the old pay, but has been acting as assistant superintendent of mails.

This was due to the necessity of a readjustment since the new salary regulations were made, July 1. This new law increased Martin's salary from $3000 a year to its present figure, $4000.

NEGRO DRIVER WHO KILLED BOY WITH AUTO GETS A YEAR

Testifies He Was Frightened and Sped Away After Running Down Lad.

George Fair, a negro chauffeur, pleaded guilty to manslaughter when arraigned Monday in Judge Withrow's court and was sentenced to a year in the workhouse. He speeded away after an automobile he was driving had run down and killed Martin Burgess, 10 years old, of 1126 Walton avenue. The accident was at Page boulevard and Walton avenue, July 2.

Fair formerly was employed as houseman and chauffeur at the home of Arthur Thatcher, 5185 Lindell boulevard, and Arthur Thatcher Jr., 16 years old, was with him in the automobile when the Burgess boy was killed.

Fair was arrested through the automobile license number, which had been taken by witnesses. On the witness stand he said he was so frightened that he drove away without taking account of the possible consequences.

Fair was driving east on Page boulevard when young Burgess tried to run across the street in front of the automobile and was knocked down. The negro immediately put on all possible speed and dashed away, leaving his victim lying in the street. The boy died several hours later.

Fair was not arraigned under the new State law, which makes it a felony for a motorist to run away after striking a person. The fact that he ran away, however, was taken into consideration and would have weighed against any evidence Fair might have introduced to prove that the accident was unavoidable.

Mrs. Weeke Crazy About Hank for 5 Years She Says

anyhow, won't you, Mrs. Weeke?'

"'Why, what's the matter, Howard?' I asked.

"'Oh,' he answered, 'they just got me for $125.'

"'Well,' I answered, 'I think it's a shame to take money from a child like you.'

"Between taking care of Hank and taking care of the poker players I had my fill of married life. Hank used to think it was something to be proud of the way I attended to him, and he let the poker players know all about it. I suppose they thought he was exaggerating about my washing his face and shaving him and so on, but it was absolutely so.

"I know people will think it was awfully silly, but for five years I was foolish about that man.

"It began the very day of our marriage. Hank wanted to celebrate the wedding, but he was always economical about spending money, so he sent me home at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Then he set out to celebrate by himself. He didn't get home until 3 the next morning.

"I felt sorry for him when he wakened and helped him dress. Every morning thereafter of our married life he insisted on my dressing him. He wouldn't even put a button in his shirt. When I went away for a week I had to buy seven sets of buttons and put them in seven different shirts so he wouldn't have to change the buttons from one shirt to another.

"Once Al Thompson helped out while I was away, by tieing his tie for him each day. But the other times when I went away I first had to buy him patent ties that would slip on by themselves.

Said He'd Stay Unwashed.

"Several times I thought I would rebel against washing his face and neck. Then he would sit and pout and give me this threat:

"'Well, I'll stay unwashed then.'

"So I would have to give in and bathe him. I was dreadfully embarrassed one Sunday when Adolph Nast, the former clerk of the Three C's Court, called. I had to give Nast the Sunday papers to read and excuse myself while I put the finishing touches on Hank."

Mrs. Weeke is enjoying greatly the report that Weeke has been missing from his saloon and his usual haunts since she began making public the story of "Politics and Poker."

"'Persons that snitch on me disappear or go to the asylums,' he used to tell me, and he almost had me bluffed into believing it.

She Had to Use Safety Razor.

"But then I guess he used to be afraid of me, too, because he would never let me shave him with anything but a safety razor. I got so into the habit of shaving him that I miss it dreadfully now. It was my last official act as Hank's wife. After we had quarreled and I was leaving him for good, I shaved him before I went away.

"One morning when I didn't want to be the barber, Hank became so angry that he took a beautiful mug with elks' horns that someone had given him for a Christmas present, and dashed it to pieces in the sink. But I relented later and shaved him."

A. G. VANDERBILT HAS SON, RICHEST AMERICAN BABY

Father of Child Born in England to Receive Another $25,000,000 Oct. 20.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt Sunday at "Caesar's Camp," Wimbledon.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 23.—Both Capt. Isaac Emerson and his former wife, Mrs. C. Hazeltine Basshor, have received cablegrams from Betchworth, Surrey, England, announcing the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who were married Dec. 17 last in England. The message, sent by Vanderbilt, stated the mother and child were doing well.

The son will be the richest of all the young American millionaires. A. G. Vanderbilt, to whom was willed the greater portion of the estate of his father, Cornelius Vanderbilt, will receive the second half of his patrimony on his thirty-fifth birthday, Oct. 20, amounting it is said, to $25,000,000. His wealth is estimated at about $60,000,000. The new Vanderbilt baby has a half brother in this city, William Henry Vanderbilt, who was born in 1901. He is the only child of Mr. Vanderbilt by his first wife, who was Elsie French.

The first Mrs. Vanderbilt divorced Vanderbilt in 1908, and the court awarded the custody of the boy to her.

The second Mrs. Vanderbilt divorced Dr. Smith Hollis McKim in Reno a short time before she was married to Vanderbilt.

E. G. LEWIS GETS AN EXTENSION OF 30 DAYS

Rereree Grants Additional Time for $100,000 Payment on Magazine Building.

A conditional extension of 30 days' time to E. G. Lewis to complete the payment of $100,000 for the Woman's Magazine Building was granted Monday by Walter D. Coles, referee in bankruptcy. Coles refused Lewis' application for an extension of 90 days, and granted the 30 days' extension on condition that Lewis turn over to the referee Tuesday all the securities he holds on the building with the accumulated interest on the $100,000.

Lewis purchased the Woman's Magazine Building and the Woman's National Daily Building at a judicial sale of the properties June 26. He was given 90 days to make the payment, aggregating $140,000. He has paid $40,000, completing the payment for the national daily building.

P. H. Cullen, attorney for Lewis, appeared before Referee Coles, seeking the extension of time.

STORY THAT TWO KILLED SELVES IN AUTO A FAKE

Los Angles Lawyer Angry at Report That He and Woman Plunged Into Canyon.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23.—Niles C. Folsom, a young attorney, who, according to reports late last night, killed himself with Thelma Bartee of San Diego, by plunging off a trail in the Topango canyon in an automobile, was angry today at the newspaper articles which had been written about him.

It was said the authorities might take steps toward the prosecution of any person who might have promulgated the tale, which was sent to many newspaper offices.

Balboa Dock Laborers Strike

PANAMA, Sept. 23.—A strike of dock laborers is on at Balboa, owing to dissatisfaction with the working conditions. As a consequence, four ships in the docks have been delayed in sailing.

SECT GARB FOR INDIAN TEACHERS NOW IN SERVICE

Taft Upholds Fisher in Revoking Order Barring Religious Dress From U. S. Schools.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Secretary Fisher's action last January in revoking the order of former Indian Commissioner Valentine, barring religious garb or insignia from Government Indian schools, was upheld by President Taft, in an order made public today.

The decision of the President is that teachers now employed in Indian schools may continue to wear the garb of their religious orders, but the privilege is denied to any persons hereafter entering the service. This ruling will enable the Government to fulfill its obligations, the President says, to the teachers who were taken into the Government's service when religious schools were taken over bodily as Government institutions.

Secretary Fisher holds there is no legal prohibition against the employment of Government teachers who wear religious dress, and that opinion is indorsed by the President. It is pointed out that sectarian religious instruction is not given in any of the schools now under Government control.

Valentine has resigned and is no longer in the Government service.

TALKS FOR SOCIALISM

M. P., Here, Says It Would Make Christianity Possible.

"Get out with your gun—I mean with your ballot," said Keir Hardie, labor leader in the British House of Commons, in an address at New Club Hall Sunday afternoon in behalf of the Socialist national ticket. He said that the election of Taft, Wilson or Roosevelt would be a victory for the trusts and a defeat for labor. He said Socialism would "make Christianity possible."

Emma Langdon, representing the Western Federation of Miners, made a sarcastic address at the same meeting, in which she said that "the nearest Roosevelt ever came to breaking a trust was when he collected his campaign fund." Hardie left Sunday night for Trinidad, Colo.

Hugo Monument at Waterloo.

WATERLOO, Belgium, Sept. 23.—The first stone of a monument to Victor Hugo was laid on the battlefield immortalized by the French poet and novelist in "Les Miserables." A great throng of French and Belgians attended. The relic house erected near the farmhouse where Napoleon established his headquarters was thrown open. Here have been gathered bones and weapons collected from all parts of the field.

DON'T USE DRUGS FOR CONSTIPATION

Just Try Nature's Cure

We all know that constipation brings on countless other complaints if not taken in hand, appendicitis among them—also that any drug will lose its power after being taken for a time—but we should also know that every drug forces Nature instead of assisting her, and will, if continued, make us slaves to them.

There is now a method of internal bathing which will keep the intestines as clean and pure and free from waste as exacting Nature can demand—which, taken occasionally, will prevent constipation, biliousness with its depression, and the countless more serious diseases which are caused by the blood taking up the poisons from the intestines and carrying them through the system.

That method is the "J. B. L. Cascade," which is being enthusiastically used by many thousands, is prescribed by the most enlightened physicians everywhere and is now being shown and explained by Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, 515 Olive st., 7th and Locust sts.

Everyone should at least investigate this nature-cure without delay.

Buy a New Ash Can at Once

Beginning November 1st, the City Will Carry Away All Ashes, Rubbish, Etc., Without Charge

The City of St. Louis has appropriated the sum of $150,000 to provide equipment for the removal of rubbish and ashes. This means that after November 1st, 1912, they will be carried away free of charge provided that they are placed in a proper container which the ordinance says must be as follows:

"Receptacles for household ashes shall be made of metal, shall be supplied with a close-fitting cover and shall have a capacity not less than 10 or more than 20 gallons and shall be so constructed that the can when filled with household ashes can be handled by one man——"

It is therefore, necessary that you provide yourself with an ash can at once, and we advise immediate action in order to avoid the rush which is sure to come later on. These cans will be sold now with the provision that they are to be delivered to you any time before November 1st, 1912.

Stop Rubbing Out Your Clothes

Why not stop rubbing out your clothes—put a PERFECTION VACUUM WASHER in your clothes boiler—and then all you have to do is to fill the boiler with clothes and soapy water, leave it over the fire for twenty minutes and then your clothes are as sweet and white as you could wish. The suction does it—it draws the water up through and out again in steady spray at the rate of five gallons a minute. Do you wonder that many women are calling it a wonderful invention—and ordering it sent home to do their washing for them. It is now being demonstrated in the Housefurnishing Section in our Basement. TWO REPUBLICAN ELECTORS QUIT; MORE EXPECTED TO State Committee Meets Here to Apply "Acid" Test in Pledging Men to Taft.

WILL FILL GREER'S PLACE

Loyalty of Mason, the Candidate for Attorney-General, Will Be Investigated.

An "acid" test, binding every Republican presidential elector in Missouri to vote in the electoral college for Taft for President, was planned Monday by Republican State Committeemen. They gathered in St. Louis for a special meeting after State Chairman Elvins had received the resignation of two electors and knowledge that at least eight other electoral nominees had signed an agreement that they would vote against Taft if they were elected.

The Republican leaders, while declaring outwardly that they were effectively suppressing the third party movement in Missouri, privately admitted they were much concerned over the situation. The two electors whose resignations were received by State Chairman Elvins Monday are John Albus of St. Joseph, representing the Fourth District, and W. H. Tanner of Sikeston, representing the Fourteenth.

Ten Reported Pledged to T. R.

The State Committee has taken cognizance of the statement of H. H. Ennis of Kansas City that he, as the electoral nominee for the Fifth District, had distributed pledges among the 12 electors who were for Roosevelt's nomination prior to the Chicago convention, binding themselves to vote against Taft, and that 10 out of the 12 had signed the pledges.

Tanner's resignation was brought to St. Louis by James A. Finch of Fornfelt, former secretary of the Republican State Committee. Elvins said he was expecting other resignations before the meeting of the committee at 2:30 p. m. The resignation of Albus was brought in by one of the committeemen from the Fourth District.

The State Committee also is investigating its candidate for Attorney-General, James A. Mason of Springfield. While the Progressive party convention was in session at St. Louis, H. H. Duncan of the State Factory Inspector's office read a telegram to the Tenth District delegation authorizing Duncan to announce his withdrawal from the Republican State ticket and to try to get the nomination for him for Attorney-General on the Progressive ticket.

Elvins said Mason had denied sending the telegram, which was dated at Laclede, Mo. He said they would try to get the telegram from Duncan, and then would determine what course would be pursued with respect to Mason.

The committee also prepared to select a candidate for State Auditor to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Green B. Greer of Sikeston. Greer was nominated without opposition in the State primary, and withdrew immediately. He was a Roosevelt man, and refused to support Taft. Lin Grisham of Frederickton has been mentioned as the probable choice of the committee for the vacancy. There has been some talk of Leon W. Quick, City Treasurer of St. Louis, for the place, and also of R. D. Silver.

Elvins Host at Luncheon.

The State Committeemen, with all the State, congressional and judicial candidates and members of the Republican City Committee, were guests of Chairman Elvins at luncheon at the Planters Hotel.

Elvins said he did not know by whom the resolution to purge the electoral and State ticket of all disloyal Republicans would be presented, but that it was the prevailing sentiment that such a test should be made.

Barryman Henwood of Hannibal and O. G. Boisseau of Holden declared they were suppressing the Progressive party in their districts. Boisseau said, however, he had not been able to induce his father, D. T. Boisseau, formerly one of the Republican leaders of Johnson County, to come back into the Republican fold.

Committeeman Henwood said: "Nearly all the Roosevelt men have come back to the Republican party in Marion County and will vote for Taft and the State ticket. The few Progressives who will vote for Roosevelt will vote for our State ticket. Many of the Cowherd men of Hannibal will vote for McKinley for Governor. The Democratic combination, Major, Roach and Gordon, is a red rag to the Republicans, and none will vote for them.

"An evidence of the demoralization of the Progressive party was seen in the announcement of Col. Dick Dalton to a Progressive party ward meeting that he intended to withdraw as a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court. Dalton was nominated at the Progressive State convention. He said he would stick to the Progressive party, but could not be one of its candidates. His announcement was made, I am sure, because he saw the Progressives losing ground."

Hadley Cannot Be Here.

Chairman Elvins sent Gov. Hadley a special invitation to attend the luncheon, but the Governor found it impossible to be here.

To counteract the Roosevelt meeting at Joplin Monday night, the Republican State Committee sent Charles Henry Phillips, a negro orator, there to make a speech. The Republican Committee heard the Progressives were going to charge $1 admission to the ball park where Roosevelt was scheduled to speak, and they advertised the negro speech free at another park.

"Strongarmed" and Robbed.

William Melvin of Kirkwood told the police that three men "strongarmed" and robbed him of a watch and chain valued at $145 at Eighteenth and Wash streets Sunday night.

Mabel Hite Is Recovering Quit Doctor for Science Was Told Her Illness Was Fatal

MABEL HITE

Actress Is Well Enough to See Mike Donlin, Her Husband, in Baseball Game—Hopes to Leave Roller Chair Soon.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Mabel Hite, actress, wife of Mike Donlin, told a Post-Dispatch reporter of some of the "wonderful things that have happened" to her since a day in the early summer, when doctors told her that in a very short time she would die. Miss Hite had just finished a performance at the Alhambra, June 10, when she was removed to a sanitarium in East Thirty-third street. On June 11 she underwent an abdominal operation. A day or two later Broadway learned, on the authority of the surgeons as well as of a prominent physician, that Miss Hite had no chance of recovery.

Miss Hite's friends were told each day as they made inquiries at the sanitarium that there was no hope for her, and Broadway took it for granted that she would not live through the summer.

Cheers Mike at Bat.

But when Mike Donlin, right fielder for the Pittsburg baseball team, stepped to the plate at the Polo Grounds in the first inning of the game last Saturday, there wasn't a more enthusiastic player among the thousands whooping things up for the one-time Giant player than Miss Hite. From her seat in an electric automobile on the side lines, she informed her husband it was her earnest desire to see him slam one in the direction of Oyster Bay. Whereupon, Michael did that very thing.

Miss Hite said in an interview in her apartment, after the game, that the doctors, while telling her family and theatrical friends there was no hope for her, tried to offer her as much hope as possible. But one day they told her, too, she said, that she had only a very short time to live.

"So I turned to God," she said, "just as I suppose I hope we all do. For almost two months I haven't taken any medicine and I haven't let a doctor come near me.

"There is one physician, an old friend of mother and me, who came to see me once or twice after I told the doctors I intended to get well when they told me I must die. This doctor just came as a friend to plead with me to submit to medical treatment, but I wouldn't. That little verse over there on the wall all by itself has done more for me than all the doctors. Somebody sent it to me, I don't know who, and I read it a number of times and I said to myself that God would make me well."

The little card with the illuminated quotation runs:

"In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength."

Her mother, Mrs. Elsie Hite, for a long time has been interested in Christian Science, and during Miss Hite's illness last winter and especially after she was operated upon in June, Mrs. Hite tried to influence Miss Hite to give up the surgeons and physicians and all medicines. Miss Hite would not do so, however, until the doctors told her that her illness was necessarily fatal.

Mrs. Hilah Reeder, the Christian Scientist, visited Miss Hite when the patient was removed from the sanitarium to her apartments at the Powelton. Mrs. Reeder, Mrs. Hite and E. Y. Stimson, the New York manager of a Detroit automobile company, who is an ardent Christian Scientist, lent their arguments, and Miss Hite replaced the doctors and nurses with a Christian Science nurse, Miss Sayford. Miss Sayford was a nurse in a Washington hospital until two years ago when, she says, she gave up administering medicines and left the hospital upon taking up Christian Science.

Miss Hite's illness of last winter and again in the early summer resulted, of course, in emaciation. Although still very thin she has regained her appetite, and has been gaining weight the past few weeks.

During the past two weeks she has been taking her meals at table while seated in an invalid chair. She still has to rely upon the rolling chair when she goes from the elevator out to the door of her automobile, but, according to her confident statement, she hopes in a short time "to quit the rollers and the rolling chair for good."

NEBRASKAN HERE IN AUTO STEALS HIS FIFTH WIFE'S BOY

Takes Son, 4, From Valley Park Home, Telling Lawyer Courts Are Too Slow.

John B. Fackler rode up in an automobile Monday morning to the home of his fifth wife in Valley Park, and, stepping out of the machine, seized his 4-year-old son, Gordon, who was playing in front of the house.

He drove rapidly away as Mrs. Fackler, screaming, ran into the street commanding him to stop and bring the child back.

Mrs. Fackler called Deputy Sheriff Summers, who lives at Valley Park, and he notified the Sheriff's office at Clayton. Deputy sheriffs were set to watch the roads leading from Valley Park to Clayton, as the machine was thought to have gone in the direction of the county seat, but Fackler and his car did not appear. Two other men were with him in the automobile, Mrs. Fackler said.

Fackler lives in Springfield, Neb., where he owns a large machine shop, and has property of an estimated value of $40,000. His wife left him in June and went to Valley Park, where she since has been at the home of her mother, Mrs. Sallie Brooks.

The husband seems to have understood at first that she was merely visiting her mother, and would return to him. When he found that she did not intend to do so, he followed her to Valley Park and consulted Floyd W. Brooks, a lawyer there, as to a habeas corpus proceeding for possession of the child.

Brooks said Monday he arranged to file such a proceeding at Clayton Tuesday, but that Fackler seemed unwilling to wait until then, saying the courts were too slow. The attorney advised Fackler not to try to take the child by force, and thought he had persuaded him to wait on the court's action.

Fackler told Brooks he had been married five times.

Flights along the river front in one of the newest models of the Wright hydroaeroplane will be one of the features of the free aviation week which is being planned for St. Louis by the Aero Club.

Robert Nolker, president of the club, has notified former President Lambert that he has closed a contract with the Wrights. It calls for a capable operator, and guarantees a successful river flight.

Stag Athletic Club Raided.

After a special policeman in plain clothes had purchased 12 beer tickets for a quarter at the Stag Athletic Club, 2621 South Levee, Sunday, other policemen raided the club and arrested Fred J. Stephan, 32 years old, of 154 Sidney street, and Fred Sherman, 24, of 2100 South Broadway. They are held on a charge of selling liquor without a license.

PINCHOT TO BE IN MISSOURI FOR FOUR OCTOBER SPEECHES

Probably Will Address St. Louisans First, Then Go to Springfield and Kansas City.

Plans for Gifford Pinchot's tour of Missouri in behalf of the Progressive party candidates were worked out Monday by the Progressive State Committee. Pinchot is scheduled to make four speeches in Missouri the first week in October. The first speech probably will be in St. Louis, the second at Springfield and the third and fourth at Kansas City and St. Joseph.

William H. Walker, Progressive national committeeman, Paul V. Janis and Ford Thompson departed Sunday night for Joplin to attend the opening of the Progressive State campaign. Judge Nortoni, candidate for Governor, has been campaigning the State for several weeks.

Former Postmaster Frank Wyman returned from his vacation Monday and resumed his work as treasurer of the Progressive State Committee. Timothy J. Murphy of Kansas City, a newspaper man, has been assigned to St. Louis headquarters as publicity representative. Former Circuit Attorney Arthur N. Sager was billed Monday to speak at the Crawford County Fair at Cuba Friday.

Four Candidates Confident of Nomination for Governor in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Each of the four aspirants for the Democratic and Republican nominations for Governor were confident today of success in the Statewide primaries tomorrow to select all candidates for the November election except President electors.

Gov. Fose (Dem.), said he not only would defeat District Attorney Joseph C. Palletier of Boston for the nomination, but he would be re-elected for a third term in November. Pelletier declared he would defeat the Governor by 25,000 votes.

For the Republicans, Joseph Walker, former Speaker of the House, claimed two-thirds of the Republican vote. Col. Everett C. Benton, Walker's opponent, said he felt sure of victory.

In the 16 congressional districts there are numerous contests in both parties. The Progressives, Prohibitionists and Socialists will make their nominations by petition.

Father and Son Have Leprosy.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The health authorities of Spokane, Wash., have appealed to the public health service to isolate the family of Antonio Volcane, on the ground that Volcane and his 11-year-old son are suffering from leprosy. Surgeon-General Blue probably will grant the request.

DESPONDENT WOMEN

Of course a woman will naturally see the dark side of everything when tortured by some form of female ailment from which she cannot find relief.

No woman can be happy when nervous or if troubled with backache and headache or kindred ailments.

Such women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will go to the foot of the evil and quickly dispel these troubles. It has been the safeguard of woman's health for nearly forty years, and druggists sell large quantities of it.—ADV.

BOY PHONE OPERATOR, 12, SLEEPS 2 HOURS AT POST

He Responds When Policeman Is About to Break Into Offices at Alton.

George Lookeba, a 12-year-old telephone operator for the Star Telephone Co. at Alton, for two hours slept at his post Saturday night. Patrolman Henry Dinker tried three times to get into the telephone office. He was about to break the door down when George responded to the calls at 11 o'clock and explained that he had been sleeping.

The Star telephone office is connected with the Kinloch exchange and many unanswered calls alarmed subscribers, who had notified the police.

KILLS MISSOURI ACTRESS; HANGS HIMSELF IN JAIL

Wrestler Shoots Girl in Vincennes Cafe; Letter to Wife Tells of Planning Deed.

By Associated Press.

VINCENNES, Ind., Sept. 23.—Miss Lucille May, 17 years old, ingenue with a stock company playing at a local theater, was shot and killed early Sunday by Thomas H. Davis, a jealous suitor, who then attempted to shoot himself, but the cartridge jammed. After the shooting, which occurred in a restaurant, Davis walked into the street and he was arrested. A few hours after Davis was placed in jail, his body was found hanging from a bar, suspended by a towel.

Davis told the police his home was in London, and that he was ex-middleweight champion, having wrestled under the name of Harry Hector. He was 36 years old. Among his effects were found several unmailed letters, containing in all $1200. One of the letters was addressed to his wife, Mrs. T. B. Davis of Bridgeville, Pa., and told of his plans to kill Miss May and himself.

Mrs. Helen K. May, mother of the girl, who accompanies her on her tour, is in a hospital suffering from the shock. The Mays' home is in Paris, Mo.

SERVED 23 YEARS; SAYS CONFESSION CLEARS HER; SUES

Woman to Seek Financial Reparation From Indiana for Long Term.

PAROLED SIX YEARS AGO

Contends That Brother-in-Law on Deathbed Admitted Killing Her Husband.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., Sept. 23.—Contending that the half-brother of her husband, for whose murder she served 23 years in State's prison, made a deathbed confession that he was the slayer, Mrs. Charlotte Epps, now more than 60 years old, is preparing to sue Indiana for financial reparation.

Since Mrs. Epps was paroled six years ago, she has been living with her daughter in Toledo, O. She appeared here Saturday, told the story of the dying confession and engaged a lawyer.

The Woman's Story.

Her story is as follows:

"I married John Epps in 1882. His mother had just died and he and his half-brother, Ed Mise, were alone. Relatives and friends who sought his money advised him not to marry me. At all times Ed Mize, who recently died, was pleading with John to deed him all of his property, as he (Ed) said he was older and had better judgment. This John refused to do.

"We had been married but a few months when one day John went to cut corn. About 11 o'clock in the morning he came home, saying that he was too sick to work, and immediately went to bed. I cared for him as tenderly as anyone could have done. He had the best physicians possible, but in a few days he died.

"I lived at the house for two weeks after his death, until Sheriff Bowman came after me with a warrant for my arrest for poisoning my husband. I went with him and was in the Huntington Jail.

"In November my trial was held and, although I maintained my innocence, they found me guilty on circumstantial evidence and sentenced me to prison for life. No one suffered as I did in those 25 years and six long months in that place.

Heard of Confession.

"Recently I heard positively that Ed Mize had died and that he made a complete confession before he died. Acting on the impulse I immediately came to this city with a desire to find recourse against my persecuters. I have taken the advice of attorneys and will at least fight to clear my name."

Since the woman told her story it has been impossible to find the man at whose house the murdered man's half-brother died.

An American woman simply can't—

Paris styles are fascinating, but many of them are so extreme that American women simply can't wear them. This drawing, which has just come to us from the French capital, shows one of the very latest Parisian modes as it was worn on the street. Every woman will admit that it is captivating, but still—

If you are interested to see how smartly the impossibly extreme new styles of Paris are adapted to suit the sensible American taste, get a copy of Woman's Home Companion for October.

MRS. JANNOPOULO ENTERTAINS HER HUSBAND 2 DAYS

"Gallant" Husband Refuses to Talk About Charges Until They Talk It Over.

BOTH YET IN ONE HOUSE

He Expects to Stay Until Lease Expires Oct. 1—Calls Life Incompatible.

John C. Jannopoulo, described by the wife who is suing him for a divorce as a "gallant gentleman," gallantly refused Monday to discuss at length the charges made against him in Mrs. Berenice Stockton Jannopoulo's petition.

Jannopoulo and his wife are still occupying apartments at 5539 Waterman avenue, but they are living apart, and are not speaking to each other. An arrangement has been made, Jannopoulo says, by which he and his wife will "talk things over" Tuesday.

"Until then I cannot discuss the suit," said Jannopoulo when asked if he would contest it.

"I spent Saturday night and last night at our apartments. I expect to continue to live there until Oct. 1, when the lease will expire. I do not know what my wife will do then. She probably will go to her parents in the East.

Hard Pressed Financially.

"Financially I have had hard pulling in the last three years. As president of the company controlling Delmar Garden I have devoted all my energies to putting the business of the garden on a firm basis. I have had no money to spend on automobiles or other luxuries.

"There is nothing against me and nothing against Mrs. Jannopoulo. It is simply a case of incompatibility. We can't seem to get along together.

"For nearly 12 years I have contributed to the support of my wife's mother. It must have cost me at least $15,000.

"There will be no controversy over the custody of our boy, Stockton. Until after our conference I can say nothing more."

WIFE'S LAWYERS QUIT JOHNSTON SANITY CASE

Mills and Moore Withdraw From Proceeding About to Come Before Court.

Another remarkable development in the case of Roland L. Johnston, former Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, came Monday morning when Prosecuting Attorney Mills informed the Probate Court at Clayton that he and former Judge Hiram N. Moore of St. Louis had withdrawn as counsel for Mrs. Johnston in the hearing on her husband's sanity, set for Tuesday.

Free Souvenirs Tomorrow.

Blum's new, medium-priced clothing, shoe, hat and furnishing goods store—825-827 N. 6th street—will celebrate its formal opening tomorrow. Every lady and gentleman attending the opening will be presented with a novel, beautiful souvenir absolutely free—no purchase is necessary.

This store will be the home of such well-known articles as "Collegian" clothes, "Douglas" shoes, "Topsy" hosiery, "Arrow" collars, and other goods of recognized merit.

The policy of Blum's will be to sell the best grade of merchandise at the lowest possible price, but always to place quality first. Be sure to attend the opening tomorrow and see the carefully selected stock of Fall and Winter wearing apparel ready for your approval. The prices will please you—go there tomorrow, just to get acquainted—you'll find a cordial welcome waiting you, without any appeal to purchase.

Society

AN interesting engagement announced Monday was that of Miss Georgia Meyer and Carl M. Forline.

Miss Meyer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Meyer of 3419 Hawthorne bouevard and one of the belles of the Union and Liederkranz set. The announcement was made at a meeting of Miss Meyer's card club, Monday afternoon.

The wedding will take place in the spring. Mr. Forline is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Forline of 3865 Juniata street.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Simpson of 1726 Simpson place are being congratulated on the arrival of a daughter. Mrs. Simpson was before her marriage Miss Caroline Runyan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van Leer Runyan.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus B. Hart of 19 Portland place, who have been in the East all summer, will sail Tuesday from New York on the Kaiser Wilhelm des Grosse to spend the winter abroad.

Among the passengers sailing on the Berlin Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heege and Miss Katherine Gaas of St. Louis.

Miss Mamie Carby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Carby of 4559 Garfield avenue, and Jospeh Flarity were married at the Visitation Church, Wednesday morning, at nuptial mass, the Rev. Father James A. Dockerty officiating.

The bride's sister, Miss Alice Carby, was bridemaid, and James Larken served as best man. After the ceremony there was a breakfast at the home of the bride for the family and bridal party, and in the evening a large reception was given, after which Mr. and Mrs. Flarity went to their own home at 3528 Louisiana avenue.

Store Opens at 8:30 O'Clock | WEATHER—Fair; slightly warmer tonight. | Store Closes at 6 O'Clock.

GYROSCOPE BEING TRIED TO PREVENT WARSHIPS ROLLING

Great Secrecy Maintained at Brooklyn Navy Yard Regarding Experiments.

By Asociated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Great secrecy is being maintained at the Brooklyn navy yards regarding a series of gyroscope tests which have been going on aboard the destroyer Worden here for several months. It is said that naval officials hope by the use of the contrivances to solve the problem of preventing the rolling of a war vessel while under way, or in a heavy sea. The success of the experiment, it is asserted, would mean a considerable increase in the speed and usefulness of the smaller naval craft under battle conditions.

The two gyroscopes are placed on the main deck forward, one on the port and the other on the starboard. They are about four feet in diameter. The type is the invention of a naval officer, and is said to be far more active and, therefore, superior in effect to the so-called "passive" gyroscopes used with great success by the Germans.

A torpedo boat destroyer like the Worden has an angle stability of 90 degrees. In the great storm last Christmas, in which a fleet of torpedo boats was tossed about and badly damaged on the way to Cuba, one of the boats is said to have rolled 110 degrees. She dipped water with her smokestacks. The Worden is 248 feet long, 23 feet 10 inches wide and has a speed of 29.88 knots.

BRIDE PICKED FOR MANUEL

VIENNA, Sept. 23.—Ex-King Manuel arrived here unexpectedly from Munich traveling incognito as Count Curem. Something more than pleasure brought him, it is surmised, for Dom Miguel de Braganzo, Portuguese pretender, is staying at his castle, Sobenstein, near Vienna.

It is thought that reconciliation may be sought by the ex-King with the pretender, to be begun by the betrothal of Manuel and a daughter of Miguel.

CASCARETS TONIGHT! IF BILIOUS, HEADACHY, NERVOUS OR CONSTIPATED.

Sick headaches! Always trace them to lazy liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a sick stomach. Poisonous matter, gases and bile, instead of being carried out of the system, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, sickening headache.

Cascarets remove the cause by stimulating the liver. The effect is almost instantaneous. Ladies who are especially prone to sick headaches, need not suffer, for they can be quickly cured by Cascarets. One taken tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver active and make you feel bright and cheerful for months. Children need Cascarets, too—they love them because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

"LOUISIANA LOU" SETS LIVELY PACE IN NATIVE HUMOR

Barney Bernard and Sophie Tucker Do Some Vocal Acrobatics.

JEROME LEADS ORCHESTRA

"The Puritan Prance" and "My Rose of the Ghetto" Score Biggest Hits.

WITH Ben M. Jerome, who wrote the music, leading the orchestra at the Olympic Theater Sunday evening, where he came especially for the opening, "Louisiana Lou" was put through so lively a pace that there was not a dull moment during the entire performance, and the Olympic's first crowded house of the season was just as lively as the play, cheering every musical number and dance until the evening had a real festive appearance, and for the time being silenced the cry that the "movies" are killing the big plays.

Sophie Tucker and Barney Bernard lead the riotous crew of laugh-makers with what seems like new musical comedy stuff in the way they handle it, Miss Tucker screaming two or three catchy ragtime songs and almost dancing "The Puritan Prance," while a chorus of pretty girls and ardent youths move through the ordinary terpsichorean movements that accompany the music of the ragtime band. "The Puritan Prance" is a rythmic shout.

Bernard's best things is his inhalation of a touching ballad, "My Rose of the Ghetto," in which his vocal wires seem about to become short-circuited, but fume and sputter through two or three stanzas of sentimental low Jewish song with a humorous interlining. A laugh chases a tear in every stanza the sentimental ballad provoking almost constant laughter.

Barney Bernard is a really clever Hebrew character comedian, his work throughout the entire play being of a genuinely humorous order, without any of the offensiveness that sometimes accompanies low comedy of this type.

Louisa Lou is cleverly played by Bessie de Voie, who sings, dances and plays herself into popular favor. Miss Eleanor Henry scores the biggest individual vocal hit in her first song, "If Love Be Madness;" Lester Crawford, Burrell Barbaretta and Harry Hanlon add greatly to the music and gayety of the entertainment in tangling and untangling the love affairs of Louisa Lou. George Serrels and Robert O'Connor supply the villainous end of the plot.

The plot is about as consistent as musical comedy plots usually are, and its music is of the music play variety, but it is not the plot, the music or the players alone that make the play, but the combination of life, energy and personality of the players as individuals and as a whole, and the proper proportion of music, dance, humor and sentiment in the story's telling.

Chicago has sent us but few better things, and St. Louis has shown it will patronize the show if it can get what it wants when it wants it. An extra matinee has been added for Thursday on account of the unusual demand for seats.

GORDON S. SERVANT.

"MAN AND HIS WIFE" AT AMERICAN.

Playgoers at the American's Sunday matinee saw the first production in St. Louis of "A Man and His Wife," by Thomas E. Shea and associate players.

The play is dramatized from "The Spell," a novel by Samuel Shipman, and tells the story of a New York banker too busy in piling up a fortune to notice that a rival banker was also a rival for his wife's love.

It is full of stirring situations, a run on the bank, the trapping of a faithless wife, the triumph of the injured husband in his financial struggle with the rival who would wreck his home and, as a finale, the reconciliation up in the Maine woods where the discarded wife follows her husband to the home of his father.

There are glaring inconsistencies, but, to balance these, are applause-starting epigrams. Mr. Shea is admirable as the banker and Miss Charlotte Burkett plays the role of the wife with artistic skill.

This play will be produced again Monday and Wednesday afternoons. "The Bells" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be the offerings at other performances.

"RED-HEAD" AT LA SALLE.

"Red-Head," a new comedy by Joseph Byron Totten, with the author himself playing the decidedly "close kin" title role of a scorchy-haired young dramatist, began a week's engagement at the La Salle with Sunday's matinee and proved to be a distinctly entertaining play of the lighter order.

It tells a breezy story of the trials, tribulations and final triumphs of a likable chap who is to inherit a large fortune on condition that he either abandon the writing of plays or succeed in having one of his plays produced, and a pretty love romance is interwoven in the situations created by this theme. Just how one of the hero's dramas come to be staged, and the pleasing effect this has on his sentimental as well as material life-problem, is what creates and sustains the story's interest. Mr. Totten plays his part with a quite sure and effective comedy touch and is well supported by a clever little company.

The one discordant note sounded in the offering is due to an occasional injection of profanity under the mistaken idea that a "cuss word" constitutes humor in its own light. The several offenses in this respect may well be eliminated for the betterment of the play.

Beer Exposed to Light for 5 Minutes Becomes Undrinkable

This is not our statement, but the deliberate opinion of one of the most renowned scientists in the world. Read the entire statement:

"We have tested beers repeatedly, placing the bottles in the direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure, found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable on account of the peculiar odor developed. The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles, and such bottles are, therefore, recommendable."—Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology.

It is not enough that beer be brewed pure, it must be kept pure.

Many Americans prefer beer in a light bottle. Most brewers follow the course of least resistance.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light. Schlitz is sold in Brown Bottles to protect its purity from the brewery to your glass.

The Oldest Blood Disease

The most ancient history furnishes evidence that mankind suffered with Contagious Blood Poison. The disease has come down through all the ages and is to-day, as it has ever been, a scourge and blight upon humanity. The symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison are the same as in its earliest history, but its cure has now become an accomplished fact, whereas, it was once considered an incurable infection. S. S. S. is an antidote for the virus of Contagious Blood Poison, and cures it in all its forms and stages. S. S. S. possessing both purifying and tonic properties routs out all the poison, and at the same time builds up the general health. A person who has been cured of Contagious Blood Poison by the use of S. S. S. need not fear a return of its symptoms at any future time. This great medicine checks the progress of the poison and gradually but surely all sores and eruptions heal. S. S. S. destroys the source of the trouble by making the blood pure, rich and healthy, and when the blood is thoroughly purified no sign of the disease is left. LYMAN DIES IGNORANT OF HIS WIFE'S DEATH

Once Wealthy Real Estate Man and Expert on Values Meets End in City Hospital.

William Lyman, 75 years old, once a wealthy real estate man and an expert on real estate values in the wholesale district of St. Louis, died Sunday night at the city hospital, without having learned that his wife, Teresa, 67 years old, had died there Friday.

Lyman's death was due to injuries he suffered in falling down a stairway at his home, 4957 Arsenal street. A neighbor found him at the foot of the stairs Thursday evening, and it is believed that he had lain there several hours. Mrs. Lyman died of stomach trouble.

A check for $2000 and $50 in cash were found in Lyman's pockets when he arrived at the hospital.

CHARLTON SOON TO KNOW IF HE MUST RETURN TO ITALY

U. S. Supreme Court to Take Up Wife Slayer's Case Next Season.

By Asociated Press.

WASHINCTON, Sept. 23.—The long wait of Porter Charlton in a New Jersey prison for the final word as to whether he must return to Italy to answer for the murder of his wife at Lake Como, two years ago, is drawing to an end. The Supreme Court will take up Charlton's case the coming term, which opens Oct. 14.

Charlton's appeal is the most noted murder case before the court. Not only did the details of the crime stir both Europe and America, but diplomatic officials of Italy and the United States have become involved in the matter. The decision of the court will be looked to as a guide in diplomatic intercourse.

The 23-year-old prisoner, through his father, Judge Paul P. Charlton of Porto Rico, will not contest the question of his guilt, but will challenge the right of the American Government to surrender him to the Italian authorities.

Circumstances Peculiar.

This right is claimed on account of the peculiar circumstances under which Charlton was arrested.

Immediately after Mrs. Chalton's body was found in a trunk in Lake Como, the search for her husband began. He was arrested at the request of the wife's brother, Capt. H. H. Scott of the United States Army, as he stepped from a steamer at Hoboken, N. J.

He had committed no crime in America, but confessed to having murdered his wife, who, he said, had refused to obey his order to be quiet one night as they sojourned at Lake Como, on their wedding trip.

Under the treaty, Italy repeatedly has declined to grant requests of the United States that Italians who committed crimes in this country and escaped to Italy be returned here for punishment.

Knox Agrees to Request.

Italy has responded that she would punish them.

When the Italian Government requested the United States to surrender Charlton, Secretary Knox replied that, as the United States could not punish him, if found guilty, he would go free if not surrendered, and so he agreed to grant the request.

To prevent his removal Charlton's father brought habeas corpus proceedings before the New Jersey courts, claiming there was no authority for his arrest, and challenged the right of the American Government to turn his son over to the Italian officers. The New Jersey courts held against Charlton, who appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL, GLOSSY HAIR, NO DANDRUFF—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Hair coming out?—If dry, thin or your scalp itches, and is full of dandruff—Use "Danderine"—No disappointment.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of Dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine will immediately double the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—ADV.

TAFT-ROOSEVELT CONTEST IS WAR OF PERSONALITIES

—W. J. BRYAN

Nebraskan Declares the Principles of the Republican Party Are Almost Lost Sight of in the Bitter Feud Between the President and His Predecessor.

COMPARES SITUATION TO ONE 16 YEARS AGO

Says Same Great Reform Wave Has Swept G. O. P. That Created Populist Party and Aroused Democrats to Resistance.

(Copyright, 1912, by the Central Press Association.)

By WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 22.

THAT there is a natural and inevitable division in the Republican party is evident to all. It is in its essentials like the division which took place in the Democratic party 16 years ago, and is, in fact, a result of the stubborn fight made by the Democratic party against the predatory interests.

In the beginning, the Democracy lost permanently the aristocratic and plutocratic elements of the party, and it lost temporarily many who did not understand the real character of the struggle. In the course of 16 years those have returned who were misled—those whose mistake was of the head rather than of the heart—and the party is now practically united.

A few representatives of the favor-seeking class still call themselves Democrats, but among the rank and file of the party there is entire harmony—they are militantly progressive.

The Republican party, even before 1896, had a much larger percentage than the Democratic party had of those who profited by privilege or were in sympathy with those who were the beneficiaries of governmental favoritism. After 1896 the percentage was still greater because the worst of the Democratic party went over to the opposition.

The same great wave of reform, however, that created the Populist party and thus aroused the Democratic party to resistance to the plunderbund's program has now stirred the Republican party to its very depths. But here the parallel ends. The progressives won their fight in the Democratic party; and, though once since then, the organization has fallen into the hands of Wall street, the mass of the party has left no doubt as to its fidelity to the people's side of the questions at issue.

But in the Republican party the result was different; the Wall street element retained control of the party machinery, and nominated the ticket. It is true that the methods employed were indefensible; but Mr. Roosevelt could not well complain, because he had employed the same methods four years before to nominate the man of his choice.

Fight of Personalities.

The second difference between the Democratic situation 16 years ago and the Republican situation now is that the fight in the Democratic party was waged entirely on principle, while personalities have played a large part in the Republican contest. In 1896 the gold Democrats, after being defeated in the convention, put up a separate ticket, but there was no charge of "fraud" or "theft," and there was no personal feeling between the gold ticket and the regular Democratic ticket.

In the Republican party, however, the contest over principles is almost lost sight of in the feud which has developed between President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt. Nothing like it has ever been seen in American politics; and, for the sake of the nation's reputation abroad, let us hope that nothing like it may ever be seen again.

"Did Mr. Taft treat Mr. Roosevelt fairly?" and "did Mr. Roosevelt act justly toward Mr. Taft?"—these questions absorb the attention to the overshadowing of principles and policies. Had some pioneer reformer like Senator La Follette been pitted against Mr. Taft the line could have been drawn with clearness and the contest could have been conducted without resort to personalities, but it is difficult to make a definite issue between Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt when Mr. Taft is now what Mr. Roosevelt was until very recently, and Mr. Roosevelt is now what Mr. Taft, as the Progressive Republicans insist, promised to be!

It would be unfortunate for the Republican party for either Mr. Taft of Mr. Roosevelt to be elected; it would simply continue the feud—as bitter as any blood feud among mountaineers. If both are defeated the party can be reorganized and made useful as one of the great parties of the country.

Many Want Reforms.

There are many earnest men, however, in both wings of the Republican party who want reforms; some still expect to secure these reforms through the regular organization, others have joined the new party with the hope of securing them more speedily. Both of these groups can consistently support Gov. Wilson, who stands for all the reforms for which the people are now ready. If he is elected, as now seems almost certain, his victory will be regarded as a triumph for progressive ideas, and the reforms which will come through him will make it possible for the people to rule.

Surely the Republicans who have profited, as both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft have, by dissensions in the Democratic party, cannot complain if the Democrats profit temporarily by the split in the Republican party.

TELLS OF MANY BEATINGS

Husband in Affidavit Denies Cruelty to Her—Servant a Witness.

Mrs. Lillian M. Harrington of 3421 Oxford avenue, Maplewood, seeking a divorce from Harry A. Harrington, a bookkeeper in the Third National Bank, testified Monday in Judge McElhinney's court at Clayton that her child bore a birthmark which resembled a bruise inflicted on her by her husband's fist three months before the child's birth. Her husband struck her on the left side of the nose, she said, and she testified that the infant had, and still has, a blue scar in the corresponding place.

She said she had kept count of the times her husband had beaten her in the four years of their married life, and that the thorough beatings numbered 17, beside several black eyes. Sometimes, she said, her face was so disfigured that for days she would see no one, and would hang her orders to grocers and butchers on the outside of the door.

The baby, Lillian Gladys Harrington, is now 21 months old, and has been the subject of contention between Mrs. Harrington and her husband's family, which once forcibly took the child from her. It is now in her care under a court order.

Husband Contests Suit.

Harrington is contesting the suit. He filed a deposition Saturday containing his affidavit that he never struck her. At about the same time a deposition was filed in behalf of the wife, in which Pinkie Savoy, a negro laundress, testified that a near relative of Harrington offered her money and clothing if she would testify that she had seen Mrs. Harrington in the company of a man other than her husband.

Mrs. Harrington, in her testimony, said she was frequently struck and beaten by her husband, and that the first punishment of this kind was inflicted in April, 1908, two months after their marriage. His reason for striking her then, she said, was that she did not press his trousers one night when he asked her to. He said, she testified, that other employes of the bank ridiculed him because his trousers were not as frequently pressed as theirs.

He bruised her eye and cut her lip at that time, she said, and in June, 1908, he struck her in such a manner that a ring on his finger cut her face.

Scolded Her for Dress.

July 9, 1908, she testified, she went downtown to meet him, and wore a shirtwaist and skirt. When he met her on Broadway, she said, he began scolding her because she had not a "party dress" on, and he talked so violently that passersby stopped and listened When he got home that evening, she said, he renewed the discussion, and shook her so hard that her hairpins fell out.

She said he abused her throughout the year 1909 for trivial causes, such as having chops instead of steak for dinner, and for not returning change from a quarter he had given her for carfare. She said that shortly before the birth of their child, he went to a dance and left her sick in bed.

One month before the baby's birth, she testified, Harrington knocked her down.

Went to Her Mother's.

In 1910, she said, he went hunting for 10 days and did not tell her where he had gone, so that she went to her mother's home. When he returned and found her at her mother's, she said, he struck her in the presence of her mother. She said they separated Jan. 31 last, after several previous separations and reconciliations. In February, she said, her husband and his mother and brother visited her house and, seizing her sleeping child, carried the infant away in a nightgown. She recovered the child through habeas corpus proceedings.

Harrington, in his cross-bill asking a divorce, named a corespondent.

Mrs. Harrington was cross-examined by her husband's lawyer, Ford W. Thompson, and used this opportunity to make further statements as to cruelty on her husband's part. She said that when they lived on Tuxedo boulevard, Webster Groves, she had to wear shoes with soles so broken that her feet were frostbitten. She said she was required to entertain her husband's brother and the brother's sweetheart in her parlor, as the parlor at the young woman's home was "not presentable."

She declared her husband supported her better on the $55 a month which he made at the time of their marriage than on the $100 a month which he later earned.

DIVORCES HUSBAND WHO WOULDN'T PAY THE RENT

Mrs. Stella Grotefend Says She Thought He Got Good Salary —Gave Her 20 Cents.

Mrs. Stella Grotefend, seeking to divorce Peter Grotefend, Monday, in Judge McElhinney's court, at Clayton, said she was induced to marry Peter by his statement that he made $125 a month, and had property. No sooner had the ceremony been performed, she said, than she learned that he did not have so much as a week's rent.

They went to their parents' homes, she said, and after a month she looked her husband up. "I've got some money now," he told her, and gave her—twenty cents.

The court granted her a divorce, and her maiden name, Stella Rothgens. She lives at 208 Broadway, Luxemburg.

115 PERSONS ARE DROWNED IN BOAT CRASH IN RUSSIA

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—One hundred and fifteen persons were drowned today on the Dvina River, near Archangel, as a result of a collision between two steamers, according to a dispatch from St. Petersburg to the "Information" News Agency.

The steamer Obnevka, with 150 passengers on board, was proceeding along the river when she collided with another steamer moving in the opposite direction.

The Obnevka filled rapidly and sank in a few minutes, only 35 of those on board being saved.

SAFE IN BUSINESS HOUSE PRIED OPEN, CONTRACTS TAKEN

A mysterious safe robbery took place in the office of the O. L. Gregory Vinegar Co., 15 North Main street, some time between 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening and 7:10 o'clock Monday morning. When employes arrived at the latter hour they found that the safe, an old-fashioned one, fastened with a noncombination lock and key, had been opened and a careful assortment of its contents made.

A cold chisel taken from a rear room, which had been entered through a window, was used to pry open the safe. A drawer containing the firm's contracts and notes was pulled out and the notes were thrown upon the floor, while the contracts were taken away. Five dollars in postage stamps also was taken.

O. L. Gregory, the cashier, states, filed suit last spring to dissolve the firm, but withdrew it later. Gregory is said to be a minority stockholder.

COST OF LIVING STEADILY RISES FOR TEN YEARS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The Federal Bureau of Labor's report of its investigation of prices the last 10 years shows that the cost of living has been steadily rising. Investigations were made in important industrial centers of 32 states.

On June 15, 1912, the report shows 14 of the 15 articles of food investigated were higher than a year before and 10 had advanced in the last 10 years more than 50 per cent over the average retail price for the 10-year period, 1890-99.

The advance during the decade, comparing the price June 15 last with the average for the 10 years, was as follows:

Granulated sugar, 8.5 per cent; strictly fresh eggs, 26.1; fresh milk, 32.9; creamery butter, 33.3; wheat flour, 29.3; pure lard, 55.3; hens, 58.1; sirloin steak, 59.5; smoked hams, 61.3; corn meal, 63.7; rib roast, 63.8; round steak, 84; pork chops, 86; smoked bacon, 96.7; Irish potatoes, 111.9.

One article, bacon, in the last year, decreased one-tenth of 1 per cent.

HAGEN CLAIMANT GOES TO MEET MAN FOR IDENTIFICATION

Taken by Detective to Northern Missouri Town, Name of Which Is Kept Secret.

WIFE IS NOT PLEASED

Declares It Was Husband's Own Fault He Had to Leave Home.

The mysterious man who says he is Ole Hagen and who, like the Kimmel claimant, has turned up to aid in defeating attempts to recover his insurance, went Sunday to a town in Northern Missouri to meet a man who, it is expected, will identify him.

The Thiel Detective Agency, which found the so-called Hagen in Meridian, Miss., sent a man with him to the Missouri town, which is on the Bulrington Railroad, but the name of which is kept secret by the agency. He is to meet there J. E. Styles of Wells, Minn., Hagen's home town.

Ole Hagen's brother, Louis Hagen, was on his way from Minnesota Sunday to meet the claimant, but a hitch occurred in Chicago, when he expressed an unwillingness to go farther. The claimant also seemed reluctant to meet Louis Hagen.

A dispatch from Wells says Mrs. Hagen seemed to believe, when told about the claimant, that he was her missing husband. She was angry at the claimant's statement that she caused him to leave home.

"It was his own fault that he was forced to leave," he said. "He would have given everything in the world to stay, on the night when he left me and the children. I shall not say what the reason was, but since he says things that are so unjust, I almost wish they hadn't found him."

She said she had claimed only $2000 of Hagen's $11,000 insurance. This was the amount due from the Modern Brotherhood of America, whose headquarters are in Mason City, Io. She said she had filed no suit in connection with the claim.

As was told in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, Hagen left his home Dec. 26, 1903. He wrote to his wife from several places in the Southwest, the last letter coming from Beaumont, Tex., within a year after his departure.

The insurance order, against which Mrs. Hogan recently made a $2000 claim, put detectives on Hagen's trail, and they found in Mississippi a man who was known by the name of Ole Hagen, and who bore a general resemblance to photographs of the missing man, although he seemed to have aged more than might have been expected in nine years.

He was reluctant to tell the detectives about himself, and was unwilling to go back to Minnesota, fearing that he might be prosecuted for abandoning his family. He said he had not desired to go back to his family, although the youngest of his three children was born after he left home. He was brought to St. Louis last week by an employe of the agency, pending arrangements for his return or for a positive identification which should set the wife's claim at rest.

BRIDE TRIES AGAIN TO END LIFE WITH ACID

Makes Second Attempt When Husband Keeps Another's Picture in Watch.

Mrs. Josephine Bromwich of 909 Penrose street, who was married last Wednesday and who twice within the last week attempted to end her life with carbolic acid, was penitent at the city hospital Monday. She will recover.

Edward Bromwich went to board at her home when she was working to support her two daughters by a former marriage. She says that, although they became engaged, Bromwich refused to remove the picture of another woman from his watch case. Therefore she tried to drink acid Tuesday, but he knocked the bottle from her hand. They were married at Springfield Wednesday.

When Bromwich continued to carry the other woman's picture in his watch Mrs. Bromwich again attempted to take acid Sunday.

Bromwich again knocked the bottle from her hand. She swallowed a small quantity of the acid and her lips were burned.

LOSES $92 PLAYING "21"

Man's Story of Game in Saloon Denied by Proprietor.

George Dage of 1836 Menard street told the police he lost $92 and gave his note for [illegible] to cover further losses in a game of "21" in the saloon of Mike Uvlen, 1834 South Tenth street.

The police questioned Uvlen and Nick Wolz of 1705 South Tenth street and George Bucher of 1801 South Ninth street, with whom Dage said he had gambled. They denied the charge and said Dage was under the influence of liquor the day he said he had played. Dage said he and the others started in to play for matches and that he won steadily until money stakes were suggested.

PUBLICATIONS PUBLICATIONS

THOMAS W. LAWSON

Makes public the first installment of "THE REMEDY" in the October number of Everybody's Magazine.

Corporate greed, coupled with the increased cost of living, has bedeviled both politician and economist for forty years. Now comes a private citizen, Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, and "stands the egg on end." Almost a miracle!

Readers who hung breathless over the brilliant pages of "Frenzied Finance," know Mr. Lawson for a master of English. Big men, all over the country, knew that his stories then were true. Had they been false, he would have been obliterated.

Mr. Lawson had promised, in "Frenzied Finance," to make public "THE REMEDY," but he felt that to do so then was to doom it to certain failure. Amid general bitterness he withheld it. He believes the public mind has progressed so far since then that now the time is ripe.

"THE REMEDY" sums up the present-day situation; tears into the heart of the causes of our national ills; shows how the different manifestations all hark back and cluster around a central group of causes; shows the foolishness, the crookedness, and the wantonness of this central group of causes, and shows how by peaceful, rational, legal means, the causes can be blotted out, the conditions remedied.

Mr. Lawson exploits no cracked-brain theories in "THE REMEDY." It is just common sense, plus uncommon knowledge.

Instead of Revolution he preaches EVOLUTION.

You will find the start in the October

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

April 10, 1907. JOSEPH PULITZER.

SOCIAL WELFARE LEGISLATION.

The bill introduced in the Council by Dr. Fletcher creating a Social Welfare Commission apparently covers all the points of legislation urged upon the Municipal Assembly by the Post-Dispatch last winter.

The measure invests the commission of seven members, three of whom must be judges of police courts with ample power to deal with unfortunates and vagrants. It establishes municipal lodging houses with a superintendent and assistants. Homeless persons are to be taken care of and all who can and will work are to be given employment. The sick, of course, will be sent to the hospital and those who will not work are to be prosecuted and punished for vagrancy or professional beggary.

The commissioner is to co-operate with the police department and to have supervision over the workhouse, jail and parole system.

The adoption of this bill will meet the problem of dealing with the homeless who are adrift in the city. It will establish a clearing house for all of the unemployed where the unfortunate will be aided to self-support, the sick cared for and the professional beggars and vagrants given an opportunity to reform with the alternative of enforced work.

The bill should be adopted a law in time to become operative before winter. It is in accord with humanity and sound public policy.

THE EX-CONVICT'S HARD ROLE.

William Burke's disappearance hurts faith in reformed ex-convicts, and faith which is weak at best. Lately when this Philadelphia Alderman gave up his municipal duties with the confession that he had once occupied a prison cell, there was more joy over his repentance than over 99 aldermen who had never strayed, and a benevolent citizen undertook to start him over again in life with a tidy little cigar business. Now by forsaking the opportunity created for him, the man has injured the chances of other ex-convicts to find benefactors. There will be manifested a proneness of respectable persons to wag their heads and exclaim, "That is what you get for trying to reform a convict."

Yet true human sympathies will not abandon William Burke as lost, even now. If he has weakened for the time being, it will be hoped that a lamp still holds out to burn for him somewhere. The role of a confessed ex-convict on exhibition as "reformed" must be a hard one to play. Think of being viewed as a curiosity behind a cigar counter! Who could blame Burke if he sought remote parts, preferring to begin life anew unknown? A Burke by any other name, indeed, could behave as well. We cannot quite believe that a man of Burke's essential honesty, candor and genuineness of purpose has "gone to hell" just because he has hidden himself from the rude stare of a curious public.

COMMERCIAL EVANGELISM.

A national conference of evangelists, held in Chicago, has taken the first steps toward an increase of the prestige of this class of spiritual workers. Dr. J. M. Gray, dean of the Moody Institute, who spoke before the National Conference, declared that evangelism in the United States has "degenerated into commercialism and professionalism." It is much better that such a thing should be said by a distinguished divine than by dissatisfied laymen. Dr. Gray asserted that "the present-day evangelists become so tangled up with 'boosters' and hymn book propositions that they simply are in a money-making business." The function of a "booster" at a revival is, unfortunately, only too well realized by many of those who attend such meetings.

The methods of finance used by some successful evangelists were declared by the Rev. Dr. F. E. Taylor, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Indianapolis, to be "nothing but graft." When he started out as an evangelist, said Dr. Taylor, another evangelist invited him to come to his house to "learn the tricks of the trade,' as the men of experience put it. "I've got 'em kinned a mile in taking an offering," said the evangelist who understood the business side of his profession. This is worse than politics.

Too much credit cannot be given to the good and brave men who are trying to take the graft out of a certain brand of evangelism that plays upon the credulity of the masses every fall. The sincere evangelists who are, of course, in the majority, can do a great work by exposing the commercial salvationists. Before an evangelist has an opportunity to "skin" established pastors and churches by his skill in obtaining "offerings" he should be made to produce credentials that prove his disinterestedness and freedom from mercenary motives.

WHOSE PROSPERITY?

Vivid light is thrown on the prosperity slogan of the Republicans by the report of the Federal Bureau of Labor on the advance of prices of the necessaries of life within the past decade.

The report deals with foodstuffs only and shows an appalling rise of prices within the past year. Many butchers and provision dealers report to the bureau that unless prices decline they must go out of business, because it is impossible to obtain fair profits. Customers are unable to buy at prices which enable the retailers to do a profitable business.

Fourteen of fifteen articles of food used as staple necessaries have advanced from 2.4 to 18.6 per cent. The highest advances are on the cheaper meats and other necessaries such as flour, eggs, butter, lard, sugar and potatoes.

Bacon alone shows a decrease of 1 per cent, but within a week bacon has been sold in St. Louis at the highest price on record in times of peace.

During the past decade the prices of 10 of the 15 articles enumerated have advanced more than 50 per cent. In other words, it takes double the amount of money to purchase the same supplies that it did 10 years ago. Bacon has advanced 96.7 per cent; hams, 61.3; corn meal, 63.7; poultry, 58.1; steaks, 59.5.

The prices of every kind of meat and poultry, eggs and butter are controlled by the Meat Trust, which has made millions on the food necessaries of the people.

The report takes no account of the artificial high prices of iron and steel, which are factors in forcing up all other prices, nor of the higher cost of clothing, the woolens and cottons, the coal, the building materials, the tools, which the people must buy for clothing, shelter, warmth and labor.

The decade during which the prices of the necessaries of life have advanced enormously has been notable for the growth of trusts and monopoly combinations, for vast accumulation of wealth by interests which enjoyed protection and privilege from the Government.

Through the iniquitous Dingley law and the more iniquitous Aldrich-Payne law, special interests have reaped millions of profit through tariff taxes admittedly unnecessary to protect American industry and levied as plunder given in exchange for campaign contributions. Outrageous tariff schedules have been dictated by the interests for whose benefit they were enacted into law.

The Steel Trust, which perfected its monopoly with the consent and protection of Theodore Roosevelt, has made millions for its promoters and owners.

The Oil Trust has created the American billionaire and has made untold millions for all who share in its control.

There have been millions for the Meat Trust, millions for the Harvester Trust, millions for the Tobacco Trust, millions for the Coal Trust.

But the average of salaries has not advanced and the average of wages has not advanced more than 10 per cent of the advance of prices. In protected industries enjoying millions of profit from privilege, the lowest wages and the longest labor hours prevailed.

In his Columbus speech, Gov. Wilson struck the vital issue of the campaign and clarified it when he said:

> Prices have risen all over the world, but much faster and very much higher in high-tariff countries, where monopoly was protected, than in low-tariff countries, where competition excluded monopoly. And the chief cause of high prices in America is that the markets are controlled. They can be controlled because the tariff screens them from the economic forces which establish prices in the markets of the world at large. No wonder therefore that the leaders of the Progressive and Republican parties are saying less about high prices.

Whose prosperity is it that the Republican leaders boast the party has made? Prosperity is a mockery when the bulk of it goes into the swollen coffers of the favored oligarchy in partnership with the Government and in control of its power.

The chief concern of the people is not the prosperity of the privileged few, but the distribution of prosperity among the many—all the people.

We need now protection against privilege and monopoly; protection for the producer, the toiler, the home, the breadwinners and the women and children who are forced into toil and bitter hardships. We want opportunity and comfort for all.

THE CALL OF THE SPRING.

Having lived in 21 cities since her marriage, never occupying one house more than six months, Mrs. Lucy Mary Gaines of Chicago wants to light somewhere. "Think of a woman," she says, "never living long enough in one place to experience spring housecleaning." Something to contemplate, indeed!

Comes the tired bread winner home in the twilight to enter an atmosphere of soap, fresh paint and wet floors. He must take a cold snack for his supper as wife has had no time to prepare a hot meal. Solace in his pipe and book? Not any. The books are put away in the hall closet and the easy chair has gone to the upholsterer. He must sleep on the sanitary couch in the reception hall as the bedroom is newly papered and the mattresses droop over the clothes line in the back yard.

Still the man is reasonable and makes allowances. He knows that a woman must clean house in the spring just as the wild goose honks toward the north when the wood violets blow. She experiences a poignant pleasure when she leans over the railing on the rear porch and tells her next door neighbor that she hasn't been able to go anywhere for a week because everything is torn up.

Mrs. Gaines feels the call of the spring so acutely that she demands separate maintenance from her nomad mate so that she may get an opportunity to clean house at least once. It is a strong appeal.

The campaign has been carried into the pulpit, it seems, and the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill extols Mr. Taft as a man of prayer. If we must answer the pulpit, we must. Mr. Taft has indeed shown himself to be a devout man, and in his public life he has worshiped mammon and made his prayer to a rag and a bone and a hank of hair, well known as the vampire of tariff-protected monopoly.

RIVERSIDE PARK BILL

Those skillful surgeons who remove facial blemishes could make no improvement that would do more for a human countenance than a Riverside Park would do for St. Louis. Delegate Hale's bill for a $1500 preliminary fund and a commission on plans and estimates of cost is a practical step toward a most inviting project about which there has been much discussion. It is time for action of some sort.

The St. Louis of 50 years from now will look upon the very highest estimate in present probable cost as ridiculously cheap for an improvement that will revolutionize the appearance of a shabby quarter of the city.

Councilman Fletcher's bill to abolish the licensing of fortune-telling deserves to become law. The bill substantially corresponds to that introduced last year in the House by Delegate Roy Eilers, and makes the practice of fortune telling for money a misdemeanor punishable by fines of $100 to $1000. Among the minor but important subjects pressing for consideration by the Municipal Assembly at this session, the case of the fortune tellers deserves prompt action.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Retail Price of Coal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As a citizen of St. Louis I wish to ask you why something is not done to break up the combination of retail coal dealers in St. Louis? They are now asking here 12 cents a bushel for soft coal and boasting that it will go to 13 cents Oct. 1. In East St. Louis coal of the same quality and from the same mines sells and is selling now for 8 cents a bushel, delivered in the cellar. Can you not do something to break up this combination among the coal dealers in this city?

ONE OF THE SUFFERERS.

Prosperity and Freight Rates.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

An editorial writer in one of the St. Louis papers speaks of the approaching car shortage and fair play for the railroads. I admire his courage in coming out for what he considers fair play for the roads. Let us be thankful that we have some writers who think, and think honestly. I suppose if he were to publish an article along those lines every day for a week, his paper would find its advertising columns very few, because the firms who advertise are blindly opposed to higher freight rates.

Dry goods houses, shoe companies, breweries, etc., who pay comfortable dividends, could easily stand a slight increase in freight rates, which would mean little to them and much to the railroads, by permitting them to pursue a policy of unlimited expansion, which would mean unsurpassed prosperity and unsurpassed prosperity would more than take care of the slight increase in rates imposed upon those merchants who have been so selfish as to bring about indirectly a period of depression in the railroad world and other parts of the business community from 1910 to 1912. Now comes the prosperity, like a storm out of a clear sky, and part of it must be lost through inability to handle all of it. May the selfish, thinking and unthinking, lose their share of it and the loss will only make the unthinking reflect when the loss will be a future gain.

Farmer's Share of Single Tax.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In reply to "Small Farmer's" letter in this evening's issue I should like to say a word or two that might tend to calm his fears for the Ozark farmer under the so-called "single tax amendments." He seems to think that because farmers own or occupy the greatest acreage of land that they would pay the greatest part of the proposed tax. This is entirely wrong, for although some farm land is worth $200 or even $300 per acre, the great bulk of it must be classed amongst the cheapest of land. And the proposed tax is not to be assessed according to area or acreage, but according to value. Hence we say the farmer's taxes will be lowered under the proposed change, because his improvements are to be exempt from taxation and only the bare land is to be assessed, and of course that will amount to but little, especially in the Ozarks referred to by "Small Farmer."

I am told that one-half of the land value of the State of Missouri is found in the city of St. Louis and Jackson County. If that is true it will be easy for the small farmer to see that farmers generally have nothing to fear from a tax honestly levied upon land values. It is said that farmers under the present system pay 40 per cent of the taxes. Yet if half of the land values of the State are located in St. Louis and Kansas City how small must be the share of the farmers, when we take account of all the land values of all the other towns of the State, to say nothing of the value of the mineral deposits and franchises, etc.

Cardinal Gibbons on Woman Suffrage.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In the Post-Dispatch of Sept. 17, Cardinal Gibbons is quoted as follows: "If women had equal political rights with men there is a probability that on the slightest provocation they would seek divorce. Given such equality they might overstep their bounds. It might have the effect of turning their heads."

Why all these fears of the venerable prelate? Woman suffrage has been on trial long enough in different countries and states to make clear its tendencies. An ounce of fact is worth more than a pound of prophecy. And why should women, any more than men, overstep the boundary of their rights? Let Cardinals, as well as other men, consider equal suffrage from the standpoint of common justice, rather than take counsel from their fears of what might follow if woman were given the ballot.

SHOOTING THE FALLS

DOES THIS FIT ANY ONE?

The Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph prints the following extract from an address delivered by Abraham Lincoln before the Young Men's Lyceum of Springfield, Ill., Jan. 27, 1837:

Many great and good men, sufficiently qualified for any task they undertake, may ever be found, whose ambition would aspire to nothing beyond a seat in Congress, a gubernatorial or a presidential chair. But such belong not to the family of the lion or the brood of the eagle.

What? Think you these places would satisfy an Alexander, a Caesar or a Napoleon? Never! Towering genius disdains a beaten track. It seeks regions hitherto unexplored. It sees no distinction in adding story to story upon the monuments of fame erected to the memory of others. It denies that it is glory enough to serve under any chief. It scorns to tread in the footsteps of any predecessor, however illustrious. It thirsts and burns for distinction; and, if possible, it will have it, whether at the expense of emancipating slaves or enslaving free men.

Is it unreasonable, then, to expect that some man, possessed of the loftiest genius, coupled with ambition sufficient to push it to its utmost stretch, will not at some time spring up among us?

And when such a one does it will require the people to be united with each other, attached to the Government and laws and generally intelligent to successfully frustrate his design.

Distinction will be his paramount object, and although he would as willingly, perhaps more so, acquire it by doing good as harm, yet that opportunity being passed and nothing left to be done in the way of building up, he would sit down boldly to the task of pulling down. Here, then, is a probable case, highly dangerous, and such a one as well could not have existed heretofore.

DAVE VS. JOE IN 1914?

From the Liberty (Mo.) Advance.

During the Democratic convention at Jefferson City last week much talk was indulged in as to the next senatorial race, and numerous candidates were mentioned. Aside from Stone, those most talked of were Francis and Folk. Each counts on his friendship for Wilson and Major, but Folk has a little the better of Francis on the Wilson end, because Francis heartily supported Clark. And this whole-hearted support will be of material aid to Dave if he gets into the race in earnest.

The Colonel's Sincerity.

From the Henry County (Mo.) Democrat.

Democrats oppose Roosevelt because they believe his Progressive protestations are fraudulent and hypocritical. He has been the tool of Morgan and the Steel Trust for years. We do not believe him sincere in now protesting his fealty to the cause of the people.

No Doubt of It.

From the Buffalo Enquirer.

"The time will come," thundered a suffragist orator, "when woman will get a man's wages!"

"Yes," sadly muttered a man on the rear seat; "next Saturday night!"

JUST A MINUTE.

SOCRATES ON AN HONEST MAN.

YESTERDAY I walked past the White House. Diogenes, whom you all know, was sitting out on the front steps. I asked him if he had found that honest man yet, and he said he had just about decided to go in and get Taftius. As nearly as I can recall it, the following dialogue ensued:

Diogenes: Don't you consider Taftius an honest man?

Socrates: Yes; but you are not merely looking for an honest man, Diogenes. You want one whose point of view is honest as well.

Diogenes: True.

Socrates: As a matter of fact, it is no trick at all to discover a man who is honest, as Taftius is, but whose honesty avails us almost nothing because of his unfortunate point of view.

Diogenes: No doubt.

Socrates: Whereas to discover an honest man with the right point of view is, as you have found, a most difficult thing.

Diogenes: Alas, yes!

Socrates: Do you consider, Diogenes, that the unquestioned honesty of Taftius has availed the country anything?

Diogenes: No.

Socrates: Would some of the things he has done, for example, have been done any differently by a man much less honest than he is?

Diogenes: I think not.

Socrates: Very well. What, then, must we conclude is the matter?

Diogenes: It must be as you say.

Socrates: That he has the wrong point of view?

Diogenes: Yes.

Socrates: That is, in respect to those things which would have been good for the country, he feels feebly, as Rooseveltius says.

Diogenes: Exactly.

Socrates: And therefore leans sometimes to those interests which are opposed to our interests.

Diogenes: True.

Socrates: As he did in the Ballinger case.

Diogenes: Yes.

Socrates: And in the case of the tariff bills he has vetoed?

Diogenes: Precisely.

Socrates: Taftius did not mean to be dishonest when he said at Winona, for instance, that the Payne-Aldrich tariff was the best we had ever had?

Diogenes: Certainly not.

Socrates: He simply had the wrong point of view?

Diogenes: Yes.

Socrates: And therefore offset his undeniable honesty of purpose with the dishonesty of his opinion?

Diogenes: Exactly.

Socrates: That isn't the kind of man you are hunting?

Diogenes: No, indeed!

Socrates: Good! Now let us hurry away before he comes out and discovers you here. It would be very embarrassing.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

ETIQUETTE.

WALL.—Parents of bride pay for the carriage of parents.

ALBERT.—Tuxedo "law": A gentleman should never wear a Tuxedo coat when at a social function at which ladies are present. Such a coat is intended as a dinner coat at which men only are present. The Tuxedo coat is worn frequently, however, by men who consider themselves devotees of fashion, when accompanying ladies to the theater, but the same men would not wear a Tuxedo to a dance. This is true mostly of young society men, but the correct dress for a man accompanying a lady to the theater, to a dance, to a wedding or any social function, is a full dress suit, white or steel colored gloves, a white double-breasted vest, patent leather shoes, and always a white tie; a black tie should never be worn with a full dress suit, neither is a white tie or white gloves ever to be worn with a Tuxedo suit.

HEALTH HINTS.

CONSTANT.—The high Ozarks and Minnesota are perhaps as free from malaria as any other places. Go wherever there are no mosquitoes.

FAIR PLAY.—Silicate of soda is not used for rheumatism by anyone of intelligence. It has no effect in rheumatism and should not be taken internally for any disease.

C. L.—Beginning of infantile spinal paralysis may be acute, subacute or chronic; it is usually sudden, with an attack of mild fever of a remittent type, of a few days' duration, on recovery from which it is noticed that the child is paralyzed. Rarely, the paralysis may be preceded by convulsions. The paralysis may affect both arms and both legs, the legs alone, or only one of the four extremities; it may, very rarely, be a hemiplegia. As a rule, however, the leg suffers more frequently than the arm; in paralysis of the leg the muscles below the knee suffer more severely than those above. The bladder and rectum are not affected, or if so, only temporarily, and anesthesia or numbness cannot be detected. The temperature of the paralyzed limb is low and the part is cyanosed in appearance. After a few days there is a slight improvement in the paralyzed parts, although the muscles show a rapid wasting which is progressive until all muscle tissue is gone. The reflex movements are impaired or abolished.

LAW POINTS.

F. O. T.—As you signed the contract you cannot escape it.

THE COUNT.—Wife cannot prevent saloon selling liquor to husband if he is not a drunkard.

READER.—Merchant could by garnishment collect a bill of less than a dollar, but it would not be worth his while to do so.

CONSTANT.—A wife may visit her mother without the consent of her husband, just as a husband may visit his own mother without the wife's consent.

FRIEND OF THE WIFE.—Report the husband who does not support his wife and child to Prosecuting Attorney, Municipal Court Building, 13th and Market.

H. K. A.—To marry, widow is not required to show death certificate of her husband to license clerk. Minister does not ask to see the certificate. It is issued by the physician.

READER.—It is the duty of the city to clean the alleys. It is the duty of householders not to throw rubbish or filth into them. On a civilized block there would be little cleaning to do.

D. E. F.—The real estate in Illinois could not be taken charge of by a public administrator from Missouri; but as to personal property he may, decedent being a resident of Missouri. There being a will you need expect no trouble with Troll if deceased was a resident of Missouri. The will should be filed as soon as possible after his death.

H. M. J.—As repeatedly stated in this column, when the real estate is in names of husband and wife, the survivor takes title to the whole, to the exclusion of children and others, and no necessity of administration as to such property could arise; neither would any will (as to such property) they make, during the life of the other, affect the other's interest of being entitled to the whole of such property. In your case, if at time of husband's death the real estate is so held, and his personal property consists of household goods ordinarily found in homes of the average family, and he died without a will, all would belong to wife absolutely, and thereafter at wife's decease without a will her child or children (or their descendants) would inherit same.

The Post-Dispatch Daily Short Story

The Death Pearl

By Frank Lillie Pollock.

IT was the very last day. The schooner was going back to Manila on the morrow, and the divers had brought up their last loads of shell and had returned on board. The deck of the Astrea was littered with shells and sand, in the midst of which sat Armstrong, in pajamas and barefooted, opening the oyster, examining the interior, and flinging it upon the rattling heap in the scuppers.

But the operation had lost its charm for Hastings. They had hired the Astrea at Manila, and had arranged that the value of the shell should be divided equally, but that each should take in turn the entire catch of pearls on alternate days. And the luck had all been with Armstrong.

A gigantic, knobby shell which the boy had just opened lay beside him on the deck, and in his hand he was holding a small, pear-shaped object of a pale, but indescribably rich rose-color, that glistened softly in the sunlight. It was almost exactly the shape and size of a robin's egg.

It was by far the largest pearl they had found, and its peculiar color would greatly increase its value. Hastings estimated that it would bring $3000 or $4000 at least, and it had come just in time to fill Armstrong's luck to overflowing. But the boy was so transported with admiration and delight that Hastings could not, after all, envy him his fortune.

He examined the beautiful pearl with scarcely less admiration than its owner displayed, and then his eye fell upon the shell from which it had been taken. It lay on the planking, half open, full of the living oyster. Hastings looked at it sharply, picked it up and scrutinized its ridged surface with care, and then dropped it again, and his face hardened. As he threw the shell down the great pearl escaped from his fingers and dropped over the schooner's side.

Armstrong bounded up with an agonized yell and everyone rushed to the rail. But the pearl had not gone to the bottom. One of the boats was lying alongside and the jewel had fallen into it and lay shining softly in three inches of bilge water. A diver climbed down and brought it on board again. Armstrong pocketed it immediately.

"It's a miracle that it wasn't lost," he said angrily.

"I'm sorry," replied Hastings ambiguously, relighting his cheroot. Armstrong said no more. He had never quite freed himself from his boyish sense of his friend's vast superiority, and he suppressed his wrath and was silent.

They found no more pearls that day, and they sailed for Manila the next morning, with the schooner's hold full of shell that had been "rotted out" on the beach. The pearls were in a small steel safe in the cabin, of which they both knew the combination, but which was internally divided into two compartments locking with different keys. The contents of Armstrong's section were worth $6000 or $7000; Hastings had perhaps a third as much.

It was four or five days' run to Manila, and off Mindoro they ran into a bit of heavy weather. Their captain, an old island schooler sailor, was entirely capable of navigating the Astrea through a much greater difficulty, but Armstrong's boyish enthusiasm caused him to remain on deck all night under the delusion that he was being of service. About 3 in the morning he went below to look at the barometer; he swayed into the cabin as the schooner plunged wildly, and then stopped short, clinging to the door, in utter astonishment.

Under the irregular light of the swinging lamp Hastings was kneeling before the open safe, balancing himself easily as the floor heaved beneath him. In his hands he held several keys and a bit of bent wire, with which he was endeavoring to open, not his own compartment of the strong-box, but that of his partner. His back was toward the door, and in the crashing and rending tumult of the tempest he had not heard Armstrong's entrance.

The boy stood still in growing horror, his streaming oilskins making a pool about his feet. He began to feel the sensations of seasickness. He returned softly on deck, shouted down the companionway, and, after a discreet interval, returned to the cabin. He found the safe closed and Hastings in his bunk, rubbing his eyes as if just awakened.

Armstrong could not comprehend it at all. It was impossible to conceive Hastings should descend to larceny from a friend—but he had the evidence of his eyes. He would have given the pink pearl that it should have never happened. He shrunk from the idea of suspicion, but he doubted. And from that night he wore the best of his pearls in a buckskin sack under his shirt, and in the act he felt guilty of a disloyalty to his friend.

From Manila they took the first mail steamer for San Francisco, and Armstrong deposited his pearls in a sealed packet in charge of the purser. During the voyage the partners avoided one another almost instinctively.

Hastings sold his pearls for $2500, which was more than he had expected. But the thought of the great pink pearl clung to him like an obsession. He had not seen Armstrong since landing, and he did not know [illegible] had become of the pearl, but he felt sure that it must still be in the city, and one morning he discovered its whereabouts unexpectedly.

A knot of people were gathered before the window of a jewelry shop on Montgomery street, and Hastings glanced in as he passed. There, upon a cushion of black velvet, shone a splendid necklace of perfect white pearls, with a single enormous pink pearl as the pendant. Hastings recognized it instantly; there could be no other like it in San Francisco, and he went into the shop, introducing himself as a pearl dealer, to make certain inquiries.

The necklace, he was informed, had been made for Mrs. Leonard Peck. The jeweler added that Mrs. Peck particularly desired that it be finished and delivered in time for her reception on the evening of the 14th, at which the Ambassador of Belgium, who was making a tour of the West, was to be present..

That day was the 13th; he had discovered the pearl none too soon. He spent the rest of the day in promenading the streets, a prey to indecision, doubt and alarm. Several times he passed the jeweler's window, where the necklace still blazed, but when he went to look at it next morning it was gone. It had been delivered to its purchaser.

Hastings spent that day in the same mental perturbation as the previous one, only raised to a higher pitch. Something would have to be done immediately; he had delayed already too long; and that evening he got into his dress suit, ordered a cab and was driven to Mrs. Peck's redwood mansion on Knob Hill.

As he had expected, the guests were arriving in crowds. Mrs. Peck was receiving, very decolletee, with a marvelous coiffure, and round her white neck softly glowed the new necklace with the great pink pendant reposing like a gout of palest blood on her satiny bosom. She obviously did not remember Hastings; she saw a presentable young man in evening dress, whose name she could not recollect, and she gave him a soft, welcoming hand, murmured an affectionate "So glad to see you!" and turned her attention to the next comer.

She was in a state of intense felicity at the admiration and envy which were being aroused by her pearls, particularly by the pendant. The Ambassador had said that he never saw anything like it, and had turned the phrase to a personal compliment, with Parisian dexterity, and Mrs. Peck's soft and gelatinous soul was suffused with warm pleasure. This approached her ideal of happiness.

Hastings approached her as she fanned herself, surrounded by an admiring group. She was supporting the pink pearl in her hand, and it seemed to Hastings that it glowed with a deeper red.

"Do you know, it almost frightens me," she was saying, with a little laugh. "It actually seems to be growing hot; it burns me. Of course it's only my imagination"——

The sentence ended in a little shriek. Hastings had pushed brusquely through the group, seized the pendant without a word and snapped it from its gold clasps. Mrs. Peck screamed again; there was a rush to her assistance, but in the first moment of noncomprehension Hastings had almost gained the door.

"Stop him!" a dozen men were shouting. Before he could reach the exit he was seized. He struggled to free himself, but more and more men hurried up and he was held fast. By a supreme effort he managed to release his right arm for a moment, and endeavored to fling the pearl through the window, but almost at the moment it left his hand it exploded with a blinding flash and a report that shook the building.

His captors staggered back, half stunned. The room was filled with an acrid odor of strange gas, but no smoke. The shock had broken the nearest window, but no one appeared to have been seriously hurt, except Hastings, who was lying bleeding and insensible on the carpet.

They carried Hastings into one of the bedrooms and attempted to revive him, not quite certain whether he were a hero or a miscreant. His neck and his right arm were badly lacerated, but by some miracle he seemed to have escaped any deadly injury, and after a few minutes he came to himself.

As his eyes opened his glance fell vaguely upon Mrs. Peck at the foot of the bed. She had revived from her collapse into a state of daze and bewilderment. Armstrong was standing by the pillow, wearing an appearance of anxious noncomprehension—an expression, in fact, which was common to every face in the room.

Hastings smiled weakly and seemed to try to pull himself together.

"Now do you understand?" he said a little faintly to his old friend. "This is what I was trying to save you from."

"That's all right. You mustn't talk just now," said Armstrong, soothingly.

"No, but I want to tell you. These people ought to hear it, too. Give me a drink."

He was given a little weak brandy and water, with the repeated recommendation to be silent.

"I knew you saw me in the cabin that night," he continued, swallowing the drink and rejecting the advice. "I couldn't tell you about it then. It was too incredible.

"You know I was there before, in 1895, in that lagoon. Casaras was the Governor of Mindanao then, and he was a pearl pirate. He blackmailed me for six months, and then robbed me with a gunboat—cleaned me out. He said I was a filibuster. I had to leave, but I fixed up things to get even with him. I never told you that part. I wasn't particularly proud of it."

He paused and took another drink. His voice grew stronger.

"You remember manganite, that new explosive that came out about that time? They were going to use it for torpedo loads, but it turned out that it was no good. It was about 10 times as powerful as dynamite, but it would explode only under a long-continued and very gentle warmth. Well, I got a little of it and made it into a ball and covered it with red wax. I went back to my lagoon and found that Casaras had a pearling schooner there already, so I had to do the business at night. I fished up the biggest oyster I could find, opened it and put the lump of wax inside. You know the Chinese make pearls that way. Then I sunk it again. I reckoned that it would be a pearl in six months.

"I knew Casaras would never sell such a pearl as that would be. He would wear it, or give it to his wife, and the mere warmth of the body would be enough to explode it in an evening. Oh, it was a devilish thing to do, a dastardly thing, but I was crazy. I'd been robbed of all I had.

"I never heard of the thing again till we fished it up. I recognized the shell by a funny, half-moon shaped mark on it, and I didn't know what to do. I didn't dare tell my yarn—it sounded too utterly mad—and I didn't care to show myself such a brute, anyway. I came near delaying too long. In another minute Mrs. Peck would have lost her pearl and her life at once. Now do you see why I wanted to steal your pearl?" he added, glancing up at Armstrong and holding out his uninjured left hand, which the boy grasped without a word.

Mrs. Peck did not know what to say. She was vaguely conscious that her life had been saved by this young man, who had told the disagreeable story of dynamite and revenge, but she was shocked at the whole atmosphere of the thing. She had never been exposed to anything of the sort before. And she had been robbed, besides, and she murmured plaintively:

"And it was such a beautiful pearl!"

A PITTSBURG man, visiting Youngstown, had to drop a note to his stenographer.

"What is the proper way to address a young lady?" he asked his host. "Would you say, 'My Dear Miss,' 'Dear Miss' or what——?"

"Just address her as you would in the office," advised the friend.

"Oh, that would never do," the visitor exclaimed. "Suppose my wife should get the letter?"

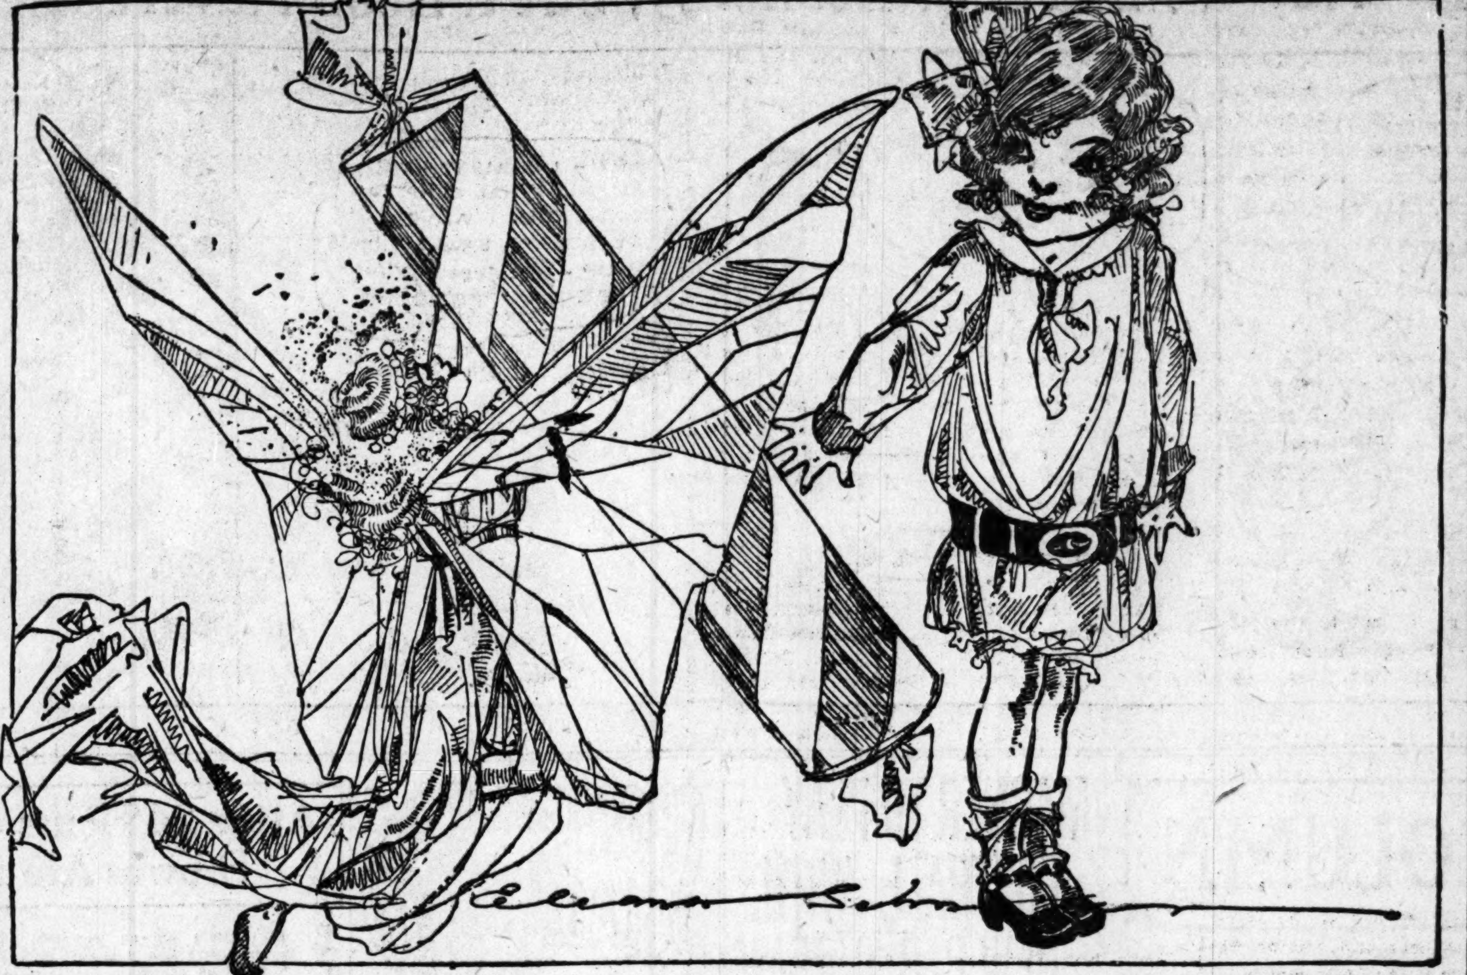
Bessie's Visits to Slumberland

(No. 5—The Giant Peppermint Stick)

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch
By ELEANOR SCHORER



ONE morning Daddy took Bessie to the barber shop to have her hair clipped. When Bessie saw the big red and white striped pole outside the shop her eyes grew large with wonder. For she thought that it was a giant peppermint stick. And she clapped her hands in glee.

But when the barber wanted to clip her curls off her smiles changed to frowns and then to tears. She cried for a great big peppermint stick like the one outside. She had thought that she would get one of these if she went inside. And now she was, oh, so disappointed! Bessie cried so hard that Daddy had to take her home again, curls and all! Her little heart sank when Daddy told her that it was not a peppermint stick. She had heard of fairies and now she wished that one would come and turn the striped pole into peppermint. Bessie never took her eyes off that peppermint stick (as she called it), and, holding tightly to Daddy's hand as they walked home and with big tears on her cheeks, she watched the barber pole until it was out of sight. She thought of it all day. And that night when the Dream Man visited her in her sleep, visions of the barber pole still danced in Bessie's head.

"Ha!" laughed Mr. Dream Man. "I'll show her what would happen if she ate a peppermint stick that big!" And straightway Bessie dreamed!

She dreamed that a pretty fairy flew out of the sky and turned the red and white striped pole into a huge peppermint stick as she had wished. That the fairy gave it to her all for herself to eat! And she did eat every bit of it, too. And then——

Well, what always happens to children who eat too many sweets? She got sick, of course. Indeed, so very sick was she that her mamma phoned to every doctor in the neighborhood. She dreamed that they all came and stood around her little bed and each one gave her some dreadfully tasting medicince. Then in her dreams the barber came and scolded her for eating the pole. And he took all the pennies out of her little bank to buy a new pole for the front of his store.

And, oh, poor Bessie! How she wished she hadn't eaten it! She felt so sorry and sick and she cried so loud that she awakened her mother, who came rushing in to see what ailed her little girl. Mamma found her dreaming. When she awoke, Beessie clung 'round her mother's neck and promised never to wish for so much candy again. And she never did.

An Odd Type.

GIRLS, beware of the emotional blackmailer!

He is the man who threatens darkly to "go to the devil" if you won't love him and marry him. A girl wrote me about such a lover just a little while ago. I advised her to "call his bluff," and she wrote again that he was drinking dreadfully and what should she do?

Do? Nothing! Any man cowardly enough to try to force a girl's affection through her conscience isn't worth saving. He's thoroughly weak and worthless. He's probably just waiting for the chance to follow the primrose path; that is, unless he's too feeble to do anything but talk about it.

Don't worry about him and, for pity's sake, don't marry him!

Parents' Wishes.

S. A. writes: "I am a young man deeply in love with a young lady, but if we marry it will be against our parents' wishes. Do you think our marriage likely to be happy?"

Yes, if you are of age and are sure that you love one another.

If You Love Him.

R. H. Writes: "A few years ago my lover went to South America, where he married. His wife died a year ago. Now he has returned home and says he loves me and wants me to marry him. Shall I do so?"

Yes, if you love him.

Why Worry Over Him.

L. K. writes: "I am very much in love with a certain young man, who in the past frequently declared his love for me. But this last year he has been paying attention to another girl. How can I regain his affections?"

I am afraid there is nothing for you to do with such a fickle lover.

Forget Him.

E. M. writes: "A young man gave me a present, then took it back on a pretext and I now learn gave it to another girl. Shall I have any more confidence in him?"

I don't see how you can.

"A. R." writes: "What is a suitable present from a gentleman to a lady whom he has known about a month?"

Books, candy or flowers.

"A. M." writes: "I am a girl of 16 and have lately made the acquaintance of a foreigner. Every time he meets me he asks to take me out. Do you think I do right in refusing him?"

It's just as well, since you are so young.

Her Choice.

"F. B." writes: "I am a girl of 17, and have been going out with several young men. Now, one of them wants me to accept his attentions exclusively. Do you think I am too young? My parents do not object."

I think you will be apt to make a happier choice if you wait till you are older before doing it.

"M. C." writes: "My fiancee is in the country, and I write to her three or four times a week. But she only writes me one letter, and that a short one. Don't you think she ought to write at least twice?"

It would be treating you more kindly.

WHY WOMAN RULES IN PLAYS

She Has Changed With the Times and is no Longer the Submissive Heroine of Old

BY ALFRED SUTRO.

THE question has been put to me, why is the modern play always, or almost always, about a woman? In other words, why does the dramatist concentrate his interest, try to focus the attention of his public, upon woman, and show man only in his relation to her? The answer is simple—because man has long since reached his fullest development and become static, whereas woman is entering upon an entirely new phase of her existence.

Through the centuries women in drama, in literature, never varied. They were passionate, they were lovers, they were cruel or merciful, they were adorable, suffering wives or jealous, tyrannical mistresses—but they always revolved around the male and had their existence only in relation to him. Ophelia and Desdemona, Francesca da Rimini and Goethe's Charlotte, Dumas' Fils' heroines, as those of Dickens and Thackeray—they only could love; they did nothing but love. Ibsen came along and gave the new type, Nora Helmers, Hedda Gabler and Mrs. Alving. The men were furious, draped themselves in their togas and cried "Shocking!" But the old Scandinavian knew that these were women who had always existed, only had been inarticulate, and that they were now finding a voice. And for all the clamor of the male his favorite heroine ceased to be a presentation of life and became a mere stage convention.

Then followed the reign of the neurotic woman, who was truly no more than woman groping her way. Man had, in the meanwhile, grudgingly accorded her education—education on practical lines that really taught something—and in her own strange and incomprehensible fashion she became better educated than he, and the neurotic woman was put on the shelf with the Amelias and Clarindas, to make room for the real one. And the dramatist spends his years and breaks his heart trying to depict her.

I say she is better educated than the male, and I believe this to be true. She has not man's concentration or his invention; she will not be a great engineer or build towering palaces, pierce isthmuses or conquer the air. But she has a spiritual side that man has not and this spiritual side absorbs the higher knowledge, the deeper truths, as a plant drinks in air.

For a revolution of a kind there is undoubtedly before us. Man has hitherto imposed his ideal upon woman, the ideal of the wife and mother. It happened to be nature's ideal, too—possibly with variations. And the years, back to the earliest time, have seen generations of women peacefully and uncomplainingly bearing their burden. It is not wifehood or motherhood against which the modern woman rebels, but she is beginning to clamor for a mate who shall be more than a mere provider of the wherewithal to live; she is insistent for qualities in him that he does not always possess or strive to possess. Saint-Simon speaks as placidly of the daughters condemned from their childhood to the convent as any ordinary man of today will speak of his unmarried sisters. But the unmarried woman is beginning to ask why she should be denied the priceless boon of children, denied the exercise of her natural functions; beginning to ask what law, human or divine, compels her to wither on the stalk. And frightened man can only take refuge behind text-books.

It is for these reasons, briefly and imperfectly stated, that modern woman appeals so powerfully to the writer of plays. For he is, necessarily, a man of leisure and an observer; and, adoring the women, as every good dramatist should, he is at least sympathetic and respectful. Above all, it is their intense variety that charms him. There is only one hero, but there are a hundred heroines; there is the eternal husband, but the wife changes like the flowers that follow each other in spring. Nor does her most recent development rob her of a particle of her charm. The days of the bluestocking are long past; the talented woman of our time is no whit less attractive than her more frivolous sister whom problems vex not. And the dramatist, like a war correspondent, hastens to the front—and even exposes himself, at times, to be riddled with bullets—though these may come from his brethren of the press, who have mistakenly believed him to be an enemy. He takes no sides, but strives merely to record what he sees—thanking his stars, meanwhile, that he lives in a time when he need not devote himself, again and again, to studies of the everlasting triangle or of strong men building up obstacles that they may triumphantly batter down—but may let his fancy play around women, who, in their struggle to obtain what they believe to be their due, remain, as they ever have been and will be, the most fascinating of all themes.

TWO .300 HITTERS NEEDED TO MAKE BROWNS WINNERS

Attack of the Team Unable to Back Up the Club's Pitchers Strongly.

KRICHELL IS RELEASED TO KANSAS CITY TEAM

ANOTHER cut has been made in the Browns' squad by the release of Catcher Paul Krichell to the Kansas City (American Association) team. Krichell came here in the spring of 1911, having been purchased from the Montreal (Eastern League) team. He gave promise of being a valuable backstop, but slumped considerably in his stick work.

Krichell's release still leaves Catchers Stephens, Alexander, Crossin, McAllister and Agnew. Krichell will serve the remainder of the season with the Browns.

By CLARENCE F. LLOYD.

"If I am able to uncover a couple of hitters from our large squad of new outfielders, I believe we will have a pretty good team next season." That's what Manager George Stovall had to say of the Browns, after they had dropped a pair of shows to the Mackmen Sunday.

"As the team stands now, we lack batting strength. But it won't require much bolstering to make a real ball club of the Browns. I am hopeful of being able to show a couple of sluggers, next year and if my hopes come true, we'll win a whole lot more ball games.

"It has been a very rough season for the Browns, but even if we are in last place again there is considerable consolation and satisfaction in having seen the young pitchers develop. They have performed splendidly at times and I think we need not worry about our hurlers for next season. We need a couple of good hitters to produce a few more runs for these pitchers and if we can uncover the stickers, it will help a whole lot."

No Game Monday.

Monday is an off day in the schedule for the Browns. Beginning Tuesday, however, the team inaugurates a seven-game series with the White Sox of Chicago. This is how the games will be played:

Tuesday—Two games.
Wednesday—Two games.
Thursday—No game.
Friday—One game.
Saturday—Two games.

Following Saturday's game both teams will board a train for Chicago, where a single game will be played at Comiskey Park next Sunday. That means eight games in a row with the white-hosed athletes and incidentally the final trip of the season for the Browns.

Will Not Buck Big Thursday.

Tuesday was originally an open date in the schedule for the teams, but Owner Hedges, not caring to interfere with big Thursday at the St. Louis fair—and incidentally not have big Thursday crimp his receipts—decided to stage Thursday's games Tuesday. Three of the seven games with the Sox are postponed affairs from the previous visits of the Callahanigans.

In the last two double-headers staged at Sportsman's Park, it has been demonstrated that 2 o'clock is too late an hour for starting the bargain-day matinees. In both shows it was necessary for the umpire to call a halt before the usual nine innings were played. And during the closing stages of Sunday's show many fans started for home. In other towns they begin at 1:30 o'clock. Why not here?

Crossin Joins Browns.

Catcher Crossin, one of the several backstops who will try for a job with the 1913 Browns, has joined Manager Stovall's forces and is daily working out with his new teammates. Crossin hails from the Binghamton (New York State League) team. In the East he had a highly successful season at bat as well as behind the log. In the few outings before Manager Stovall, the youngster has impressed.

Outfielder "Bunny" Brief from the Traverse (Michigan State League) team made his debut to Sportsman's Park fans Sunday. He caught on immediately. He went up as a pinch hitter in the opening game and stung the ball hard to Shortstop Barry. His spike caught in the tow path on the way to first and hindered his progress or he might have owned a single.

"Bunny" subbed for Willie Hogan in the second show and although he didn't get a single fielding chance, he got a base knock. On the two other attempts he stung the ball hard and on his one-day showing appears as though he might live up to his reputation as a .400 slugger or nearly.

WRAY'S COLUMN

WHEN FIGURES PREVARICATE.

FIGURES may not lie, but they can go some as prevaricators. The brainstorm party who evolved the theory that all systematic aggregations of numerals were necessarily on the level probably never had to audit a defaulter's books nor to listen to the sophistries of a world's series dopester.

Figures of themselves do not lie, but when presented in part only, or in application to a particular and distorted instance, they can play Hobb with the party who believes in them.

Take, for example, some of the arithmetic of the clubs which will take part in the world's series.

Have a look at the work of the best pitchers on either team, the men who may reasonably expect to appear in the fray either as a regular or relief man. The unqualified dope on them is National League.

	Won.	Lost.		Won.	Lost.
Marquard	26	10	Ames	10	4
Tesreau	17	6	Wiltse	9	5
Matty	25	12	Crandall	10	7

American League.

	Won.	Lost.		Won.	Lost.
Wood	32	5	Bedient	14	9
Hall	17	8	O'Brien	15	12
Collins	14	7

• • •

THE REAL AND THE SEEMING.

A COMPARISON of the records shows that the three men with the best figure on each club average up rather close in percentage, the National's best trio having won 68 and lost 28 games, while the opposing men have captured 63 and lost 20. Were these men worked in turn for each club, the pitching for the two teams would be approximately equal—so sayeth the dope.

But because the "dope" isn't complete and doesn't tell the figures or the inning story of the games pitched the figures fall to show that Hall and Collins are no means the next best pitchers to Wood; or that the records of Ames, Wiltse and Crandall are mere paper ones and that none of this second string flock is reliable.

• • •

THE DEADLY PARALLELS.

THE bald figures say that Buck O'Brien is only a fair sort of flinger, whose average is below that of his team. Yet he will probably be asked to pitch before either Hall or Bedient, in the big games.

Ames, with a percentage of .714, and Wiltse, with a mark of .643, will hardly get a look-in at the world's series games unless one of the first-string men gives in. While their figures look good, their performances are of the grated-cheese variety.

Marquard's figures seem excellent; but alas, the inside of them tells a different story. For, after winning 19 straight games, Marquard has collapsed. Of the 17 games he has pitched since, the Rube has won but seven, a percentage of .412, and to win some of these he has been pressed to the limit, though aided by the best club in the League.

• • •

GUILTY OF HYPERBOLE.

TAKEN at their face value, the New York pitching figures appear quite as formidable, as a whole, as those of the Boston staff. But these figures are unaccompanied by explanatory ones and lie like—well, like a diplomat. Boston has been getting the better pitching throughout the year. It has been getting improved pitching, too, for O'Brien and Ray Collins have come very strongly at the finish. When you delve for baseball figures, don't stop at scratching the surface. Gold-bearing strata seldom have outcroppings.

• • •

APPROXIMATELY TRUE FIGURES.

FIGURES show that the batting of the Giants and Red Sox regulars is astonishingly alike. Each club has three men batting .300 or better, with the Red Sox having the shade. Both clubs have five regulars or first substitutes batting an average of .265, while the tail-end of the batting list is slightly in favor of New York. New York, in fact, is a slightly better batting outfit, and, like the bee, is more dangerous at the tail end than its adversary.

Here are the figures on the important members of the world's series:

New York.

These figures represent the truth much more nearly than the pitching figures, but they still are no certain indication of what the men will do in the world's series.

Witness the case of Murray of the Giants, who last year went throughout the entire world's series without getting a safety.

In the ordinary course of baseball, however, it appears that the hitting of the Giants and Red Sox in the big series should be very even.

JOE ERXLEBEN IS FIRST TO FINISH IN DISTANCE RUN OF C. A. C. OUTING

For the first time in many years a crowd that will come near paying expenses attended the games held under the auspices of the Columbian A. C. at its new location, Lemp's Park, Thirteenth and Utah streets, Sunday, afternoon. It was to be expected that the Missouri A. C. track team would carry off the honors easily and the wearers of the Cherry Diamond fulfilled expectations.

Joe Erxleben of the Missouri A. C. won the 11¼ mile marathon in rather easy style. The start and finish was at the park, the 31 contestants traversing streets in the southwestern part of St. Louis for the remainder of the distance. His time was 1h. 6m.

Worrell of the Missouri A. C. won both the 50 and 100 yards dashes. Ben Collins of the Missouri A. C. took first in the hop, step and jump, while the high jump was won by O. J. Ruff, also of the M. A. C. Hans Wulff of the M. A. C. had matters all his own way in both the 16-pound shotput and the 56-pound weight events. Al Bechestobill of the Missouri A. C. took the gold medal for the broad jump.

Myers Steals 108 Bases.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 23.—First Baseman Myers of the Spokane club of the Northwestern League has established a new league base-stealing record, pilfering his one hundred and eighth base of the season Sunday. The former record of 105 bases was held by Zimmerman of the Chicago Nationals.

Tennis Courts Are Ready.

Secretary Ross of the Triple A announced Monday that the club courts are ready for play and that all first-round matches in the city championship tennis tournament would have to be played by Tuesday evening.

An all-star team of American Association players, assembled by Pitcher Fred Falkenberg of Toledo, will play the Minneapolis pennant winners in Minneapolis Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The games will put the Millers on edge for the interleague series with the Denver (Western League) champions next month.

With Walter Johnson and Bob Groom pitching, the Nationals bagged both ends of Sunday's twin bill with the White Sox. It was Groom's tenth successive victory.

MAGNER TO PLAY FOOTBALL WITH NEW C. B. C. TEAM

Georgetown's Great Halfback Announces He Will Again Switch Schools.

By W. J. O'CONNOR.

Johnny Magner, who first won honors as a member of Central High's football elevens, and who starred with the Georgetown University team last season, has announced his intention of entering Christian Brothers' College. As the Cote Brilliante institution does not recognize the freshman or one-year rule, Magner will be permitted to play with the purple and gold eleven.

The acquisition of Magner by Coach Luke Kelley is a ten-strike. Since practice was inaugurated, he has had an ambitious squad of players report, but football is new to most of the men. Magner has been playing football for several seasons, and his knowledge of the game should be of much assistance to the coach.

After quitting the high school, Magner caused a sensation while with Eddie Cochems' Barnes University eleven. Early last season he appeared at St. Louis University campus, and it was thought he would join that institution. He ended by playing for Georgetown University, where he was considered the best man of his weight on the team.

First Game Saturday.

The local football season begins next Saturday, when the St. Louis University eleven plays the Shurtleff College team. With but a few more days to prepare for the contest, Coach Dennie has announced some hard work for the men.

He is pleased to announce that three valuable students will report for duty Monday. They are Joe Schloemer, a guard of 1911; Johnny Maguire and Harry Ratican, who also played last season. Their addition to the squad makes things appear brighter at the Grand avenue institution. Art Zachritz has a slight attack of tonsilitis, but he is almost certain to play with the blue and white Saturday.

W. U. Opens Today.

Coach Cayou of Washington University has returned from the meeting of the Missouri Valley college coaches at Des Moines Saturday, and will have a practice session with members of the myrtle and maroon squad who reside in St. Louis at the Stadium Monday afternoon. The Missouri Valley rule which prohibits the coaching of players before school opens promises to be a big handicap for the chief.

STANDEN IS WINNER OF MOTOR CYCLE CONTEST

Albert Standen of Ohio defeated "Brownie" Carslake, the Australian, in the third and final heat of their special motor cycle race on the Motordrome track Sunday night. The distance was 20 miles, Standen winning by a few feet in 14:58. Standen won two of the three heats.

He has been challenged to a series of races by Wiley Gibson, the New Yorker. They will meet in the first heat at 20 miles Thursday evening. Gibson won the inter-city race in three successive heats Sunday night. He set a new track record of three miles at 2:07 2-5.

SPORT SALAD

BY L. C. DAVIS.

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT.

I met a worthy citizen of staid and sober mien;
A man of fine ability, with judgment rare and keen.
I asked him what the outlook was regarding bonds and stocks.
He answered, with a vacant smile: "I'm betting on the Sox."

I met a lawyer friend of mine, who lived in Portland place;
He was the leading counsel in a celebrated case,
When asked who'd get the verdict, he sedately scratched his jaw
And said: "It's pretty even, but I'm betting on McGraw."

I met a man upon the street I'd never met before,
But knew he was a soldier by the uniform he wore.
I asked him how was business; was there any war in sight?
He said: "There'll be a battle, and the Sox will win the fight."

I met an aged clergyman, a kind and godly man,
And, very much to my surprise, he also was a fan.
When asked the final outcome of the battle waged with sin,
Said he: "With 'Muggs' and Providence the 'Giants' ought to win."

And further on I met a man with wrinkles in his "bean;"
He was the greatest editor the world had ever seen.
I halted him and asked him for the very latest news;
Said he: "It's 'wildly rumored' that the Bostons cannot lose."

The Browns made one of their famous sorties from behind the cellar ramparts Saturday, but the Athletics soon chased 'em to cover again.

The Trolley League season ended in a three-cornered tie, Alton, Belleville and Mount Olive finishing neck and neck. A neck tie as it were.

GRUPP AFTER BATTLE WITH EDDIE McGOORTY

Willie Grupp is in New York to mix up in the fray over the middleweight title, which is in progress there. Grupp left the South Broadway Club determined to come back at the top or quit the game. He will probably see the McGoorty-Jack Harrison bout in New York tonight and try to horn in on a match.

Mike Gibbons has the edge on the next big middleweight affair, in which McGoorty takes part, however. The chances are Willie will have to get up by the preliminary and semi-windup routes.

Seven Fights Tonight.

Good battles are carded for tonight as follows:

Eddie McGoorty vs. Jack Harrison, 10 rounds, at New York City.
Tommy Gary vs. Young Shugrue, 10 rounds, at New York City.
Cal Delaney vs. Babe Picato, 12 rounds, at Cleveland, O.
Dude Clark vs. John Dink, 10 rounds, at Cleveland, O.
Otto Kohler vs. Kid Sianno, 10 rounds, Cleveland, O.
Pal Moore vs. Joe Sherman, eight rounds, at Memphis, Tenn.
Luther McCarty vs. Dan Daily, 12 rounds, at Cleveland, O.

The week will see some good battles. Billy Papke, for example, is the busy kid. He fights Jack Denning, a good middleweight, 10 rounds at New York Wednesday. He doesn't think much of Denning, for he is to come right back in a contest with Leo Houck over the six-round route, at Philadelphia, Friday. Papke has been working hard for nearly a year and is still dangerous, despite reports.

Knockout Brown is going out of his own territory at last. He is being slowly discredited in New York as championship timber. He fights Sammy Trott in Cleveland Sept. 27.

Mike Gibbons will go through one of six-round Philadelphia lemons Sept. 25. The picking is Young McCarren.

Young Saylor, who took a good drubbing from Jack Britton, critics say, will fight Joe Phillips at Dayton 10 rounds, Sept. 27.

HANS—Sunday night. Get the diamond ring at Loftis' on credit. I'll marry you.

Billiard Season Opens Oct. 28.

The opening matches in the National Billiard League championship season of 1912-1913 will be played Oct. 28, when Boston cueists call on the Pittsburg experts. The St. Louis representatives will be selected following an elimination tournament at Charley Peterson's parlors.

After 24 Hours of High Flying, Browns Are in the Cellar Again

PITCHER STRIKES OUT 25 MEN; IS BEATEN

HELENA, Mont., Sept. 23.—Pitcher Al Powers, formerly with the Helena team in the Union Association, in a game between semi-professional teams here yesterday, struck out 25 men in nine innings, and then lost his game, 7 to 2. The catcher that worked with Powers was scored 20 putouts, three assists and seven errors.

THOSE Browns are an ungrateful lot. Performing before a stingy gathering of some 300 fans Saturday, they put up a real smart article of baseball and through their victory pulled themselves out of last place.

In appreciation of Saturday's efforts, a mob of more than 15,000 was on hand for Sunday's matinee, but as usual on such occasions, even the Stovallized aggregation disappointed. Both ends of the show went to the Athletics, 8—2 and 4—1, and the Browns are in eighth place again after 24 hours of high flying.

Failure to pole blows at opportune times off the shoots of old man Eddie Plank in the opener and youthful Carl Brown in the windup was the real reason for the twin defeats.

Mack Allison was Manager Stovall's original twirler in the opener. He didn't have his usual assortment of puzzlers and received some ragged support, a trio of markers being charged against him during the first five rounds he worked.

Then the manager introduced "Tex" Napier, a Charley Barrett pickup, who also was hit hard and assisted in anything but flawless fashion. Roy Mitchell was the third heaver, and he, too, permitted a run.

The second game came more nearly being a close contest. It brought together Mr. Brown from Atlantic City, and "Shorty" Wellman, Manager Stovall's 6 foot 5 southpaw. Wellman had one bad session, during which time four of the seven blows poled off him were converted into a quartet of runs, an error by Austin also assisting.

Wellman looked good in the six other sessions, darkness ending the show after the seventh frame.

Eddie Collins had a big day, especially in the opener. He poled out four hits out of five trips and pilfered six bases off Stephens and Alexander, a feat he recently accomplished.

Shortstop Shanley started at that position, but it wasn't his day to shine and Bob Wallace was brought into action. There were many cheers for the grand old veteran.

The Browns had a slim chance to run up a bulky total of markers. But what few opportunities afforded were nipped in the bud by the wretched work of Umpires Dinneen and O'Brien. It was the consensus of opinion of the regulars at Sportsman's Park that the calling of balls and strikes of Dinneen and the base work of O'Brien was about the worst of the season. They just seemed unable to call the right decisions.

Pietro Compton again officiated as a pinch hitter and came through with a blow. He swung for Alexander in the sixth and singled. But for the fact that his drive struck the third bag and dropped dead, he'd probably have owned a double.

NELL: It's all right; can marry you now. Bought the diamond of Loftis on credit.

Commission to Arrange World's Series Before National Race Is Over

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The meeting of the National Baseball Commission, scheduled for Wednesday in this city to arrange for the world series with the idea that by that time it would be definitely known what clubs would be contenders, probably will find the National League race still undecided, to a mathematical certainty.

The New York Giants now need four games to assure them the National League pennant, and the only way in which they can win that assurance before the National Commission meets will be the combination of victories over Pittsburg here today and tomorrow, together with double defeat of Chicago by Philadelphia at the same time.

Brewer in Good Shape for Bout With Oklahoman

Kansas City Man Expects Hard Battle With Art Magirl Tuesday.

Harry Brewer, the Kansas City boxer, on his arrival in St. Louis, reported himself in shape for his scheduled eight-round bout with Art Magirl, the Oklahoman, before the St. Louis A. C. members at the Coliseum Tuesday evening. Brewer has been seen in action here before and rules a slight favorite over Magirl.

The Oklahoma boxer has been in St. Louis for a week and has been putting himself on edge for what he expects to be a formidable foe. The winner is in line for a bout with Ray Bronson, the Indianapolis boxer, who is due to arrive Monday with "Chick" Hayes, the banty, who meets Harry Wade in one of the preliminaries.

Benny McGovern and Charley Dalwitz, both local favorites, are to furnish one of the preliminaries, while Ollie Bishop and Archie McLeod will meet in one of the other curtain raisers.

Secretary Walter Lavine of the St. Louis A. C. announces that application for membership will be received no latr than Monday at midnight. Those desiring to join the club will have to do so before that time.

Leo Kelly in Demand.

The victory of Leo Kelly, the red-headed lightweight, over Terry Nelson in Memphis Saturday night has placed the local boxer in demand. Two clubs have already put in bids for his services, the Business Men's A. C. and the Columbian A. C. Neither club has named an opponent for Kelly.

Both clubs have advertised entertainments for October 10, although it is almost a certainty that some agreement will be reached whereby the contests will not conflict. Secretary Douglas of the B. M. A. C. says that his show may be advanced to Oct. 8.

THREE TEAMS TIED FOR TROLLEY FLAG

A three-cornered tie for first place in the Trolley League race exists after Sunday's games between Alton, Belleville and Mount Olive. Each team has won 20 of its 28 games. Alton and Belleville divided a double-header Sunday, Belleville winning the first, 8—7, while Alton took the second, 9—2. Mount Olive took the Ben Millers in camp, 3—2. A fall series of games will likely be arranged to determine the pennant winner.

THE POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

STEEL COMMON STOCK FIRM IN WALL STREET

Price Touches a New High Point on Present Movement at 77¼—General List Shows an Irregular Range.

United States Buys Gold in London Market.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The United States was again a large buyer of bar gold here today, when $2,250,000 was purchased on behalf of American bankers at the rate of 77s 9¼d per ounce, the same price as last week.

The balance of the $3,000,000 on offer was taken by India.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"One doubtful question regarding our position and policy on the international market was settled today by the engagement in London for New York of $2,500,000 gold, arriving from South Africa. Since this gold has not been taken into the Bank of England's reserve, and since such arrivals are always open to the competitive bids of outside markets, the operation is not, strictly speaking, a withdrawal of gold from Lombard street.

"Indirectly, however, it amounts to the intercepting of gold supplies on which the bank had been reckoning, and it will therefore serve to test the status of the foreign money market.

"So far as concerns our own position, it merely emphasizes the fact that the present extraordinary financial and agricultural position has given America, for the first time in at least half a dozen years, a perfectly legitimate command over the gold reserves of Europe. The question of how much more gold is to come will depend on the attitude taken by financial Europe toward today's engagement.

"The stock market opened strong, receded fractionally under what seemed to be free profit-taking, then resumed the advance, closing with net gains which, though not very large, were pretty well distributed, and were accompanied by trading in an exceptionally wide range of stocks.

"There was evidence of a wholesome sort that some restraining influence was being applied to the tendency of prices to move ahead too rapidly. Call-money rates were not as high as the top level of last week, and the time-money market responded to the gold import news by some relaxation in the demands from Stock Exchange commission houses. The gold engagement had little effect on the market for foreign exchange, though rates were a trifle higher."

Grain Movement Heavy.

"Movement of grain from American farms to the primary distribution points continues in so extraordinary a volume as to mark out, for itself, the establishment of new trade conditions. Week before last the total deliveries of 28,000,000 bushels exceeding the same week in 1911 by 69 per cent, and running 4,000,000 bushels beyond the highest record of a week in our history, excited wonderment.

"Now that the figures of last week's deliveries are compiled. The process of record breaking is pushed materially higher; the total for the week 30,990,000 bu, being no less than double the same week in 1911, and exceeding by 29 per cent the largest weekly movement of any prvious season.

"Under such circumstances, it will not be surprising that the car shortage figures are expected to increase; indeed, it will probably not have escaped notice that the total deficiency reported Saturday of 8620 freight cars below the immediate needs of shippers was based upon returns as of Sept. 12, or before the Northwestern grain movement had attained its full magnitude.

"No doubt this shortage in facilities for prompt transportation of our enormous crops is destined to cause inconvenience at many points; but perhaps the salient fact about it lies in the obvious inference that the harvests of themselves will keep the railways busy, and their earnings large during many months to come.

WEATHER MAP IS FACTOR IN THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Move Over Irregular Range on Storm Forecast.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Cotton opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 2 points, in sympathy with disappointing cables. There was considerable buying on the threat of another Gulf storm, which had caused more or less rain in the Eastern belt over Sunday, but no frost was reported in the belt and temperatures were rising this morning. This modified the unfavorable view of the weather to some extent and the market gradually eased off to a net loss of 7 or 8 points under realizing and a little selling by spot houses.

Cotton—Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.85c; middling gulf, 12.10c. Sales, 88 bales.

Bond Demand Shows Some Improvement—Railways Issues Are Quiet.

ST. LOUIS CLEARING HOUSE STATEMENT.

	Clearings	Balances.
Today	$13,984,729	$1,060,034
Last week	15,540,148	1,120,086
Decrease	$1,555,419	$60,052

Activity in securities in the local market Monday centered in special issues, but the price range on the general list was fairly well maintained. The investment demand in the bond department showed a considerable increase, and brokers reported a better over-the-counter business than in some time past.

United Railways issues lacked support, and the bonds of the company were offered at $75.75 after sales at that figure. The preferred stock had only $41 bid and offers at $45, and the common was quoted at $13 to $13.25.

National Bank of Commerce showed a little easier tone, sales being recorded at $156 and $155.50, or a decline of ½ a point. At the close the stock was offered at $155.75 with $155 the best bid. Other bank and trust issues showed no important changes.

The demand in the miscellaneous list was fair. Cities Service preferred sold for the first time in several weeks at $91, and International Shoe common was taken at $92.75. East St. Louis and Suburban bonds at $95.62½ and $95.50 were the most active bond issue.

Local Money Market.

To all intents and purposes the trend of interstate rates will not show any material changes in the coming six days, since the requirements of the correspondent interior banks are by this time well understood. Furthermore, in some sections cotton has already been marketed and the St. Louis bankers, particularly those representing the large reserve institutions, are counting upon the return of some of this money as an offset from this time forth to the shipments to other affiliations in the crop-growing regions.

Interest quotations today were 5½ to 6 per cent for all maturities, although little money was put out beyond the four months' period. There were numerous bids from outside commercial paper houses for money for all maturities at 5¾ per cent, and one or two banks loaned large blocks on this basis and also at 6 per cent where the names were not so well known. Demand funds were very dull during the day.

World's wheat shipments of 14,688,000 bu, against 14,576,000 bu last week and 11,200,000 bu last year, a good weather map and heavy primary receipts caused some selling of wheat in the early market Monday. Later the offerings dried up, and prices rallied to a small fraction above Saturday's final figures. Corn was inclined to seek a lower level, on good weather over the growing belt and a weaker technical position, owing to the elimination of the shorts on the recent rise. Oats were about steady.

Liverpool's wheat market opened ⅛d to ⅜d lower, in sympathy with lower American cables, Saturday, and large world's shipments, especially to the United Kingdom. Following the opening, there was covering by early sellers, and some outside support, with no particular pressure from the heavy world's shipments, and the absorption of all arrivals. There was a better demand for American and Canadian parcels, and the strength in Paris at the opening helped the advance.

Liverpool corn opened ½d lower and later the near month further declined ⅝d on large plate offers and smaller inquiry. The distant months were well supported on expected large shipments from America later on, and favorable crop advices.

Liverpool wheat futures closed ⅛d to ⅜d up; corn, ⅛d to ⅜d up. Paris wheat, ⅛@⅜d up, flour unchanged to ⅛d lower. Antwerp wheat, ⅝d lower; Berlin, ¼c lower and Budapest, 1¼c up since Friday.

Minneapolis wheat cars were 889, last week 916, last week 1061. Duluth had 1112, last week 1395, last year 111. Winnipeg had 163, last week 146, last year 845. Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 142,000 bu in two days.

Bartlett-Frazier's wire to their local representative, A. C. Petri, said: "The wheat market today was more or less of an unnatural one, in view of the accumulating evidence in the way of supply and demand. The forecast is hardly offsetting the increases in stocks, which are taking place at primary points in the spring wheat territory. Sept. wheat at Minneapolis seems to lack buyers, as deliveries are being made there today on these contracts. Our own Sept. wheat is a drag as compared with the deferred futures, having ruled today 1c a bushel under Dec. In view of all these facts, we cannot but feel that the price of wheat is too high."

LIVESTOCK

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Sept. 23.—Receipts of livestock at this market today were as follows: Cattle, 13,000; hogs, 6500; sheep, 6000; horses and mules, 700.

NATIVE CATTLE—Receipts proved quite generous and trade leaned in favor of buyers throughout the day. Market ruled weak to a dime lower and toward the close the decline was fully 15c.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—There was a right good run in this department today. Steer trade and butcher cattle sold weak to lower, while canners held to a steady level.

HOGS—A moderate supply was received and as the demand was good from the outside, the market opened steady and prices were 5c higher on all hogs that suited the shippers and butchers, but those that had to go to the packers were slow sale and did not show much advance. The top was $8.90 and the bulk went at $8.50@8.80. Packers paid $8.35@8.70 for fair to good mixed and heavy hogs, while the good hogs to the shippers and butchers brought $8.75@8.90. Best lights sold at $7.50@8.25, best pigs, $6.75@7.50; fair grades, $6@6.50, and the rough heavy throwout packers, $8@8.25.

SHEEP—The receipts were quite liberal and the market was 10@15c lower on both sheep and lambs and those that were not fat were mighty slow sale. Best lambs brought $6.60@7; medium kinds, $6@6.50, mutton sheep, $3.75@3.90; stockers, $2.50@3.50, and bucks, $3.

HORSES AND MULES—The horse market today presented a brisk and fairly active appearance, with most classes selling at a price range which was slightly higher than last week. Fresh receipts included about 500 head. Big, sound, ready-for-work horses sold at good prices.

The mule trade today was just fairly satisfactory, with all classes selling at a price range which was steady to slightly stronger than last week. Fresh receipts included about 175 head.

INDEPENDENT STOCKYARDS,
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23.

CATTLE—Market steady.

HOGS—Market 5@10c higher. Butchers, 180 to 220 pounds, $8.80@8.90; mixed packers and heavy, $8.60@8.85; lights and yorkers, $8.40@8.80; pigs, $6.50@7.75; bulk, $8.80@8.85.

SHEEP—Market 10c lower. Good to choice lambs, $6.60@7; fair to medium, $5.50@6.50; culls, $3@4.50; good fat mutton sheep, $3.85@4; stockers, $2.50@3.50; goats, $2.50@4.50; bucks, $2.75@3.

Why There Is No "Blue Rose."

EVERY now and then some flower expert declares he has evolved a blue rose. He hasn't. There is no such thing in nature and never can be. A dull, purplish, bluish red rose has been evolved. But it is no more blue than the sky is green. A gardener once evolved what passed for a blue rose until it was learned that he produced it by watering a white rose's roots with indigo. In nature there is never a blue flower, a red flower and a yellow flower of the same species. There are red roses and yellow roses but no blue roses. There are blue pansies and yellow pansies but no bright red pansies. There are red hollyhocks and yellow hollyhocks but no blue hollyhocks. And so on, all through the realm of flowers. No one knows just why. But it is true. Thus the blue rose, which has been sought for 900 years, has never been found. And in spite of yearly experiments that have cost in all many thousand dollars it probably will never exist.

Texas Pride.

G. A. JONES, who looks after a portion of the Swenson interests in Texas, was bothered by thefts of wood from the Spur Range. He sent out Al Sullivan, a cowboy, to catch the thieves Within a few days Al brought in—an old nester, dirty and ragged, with his toes out of his shoes and a tuft of hair showing through the crown of his hat.

"I don't feel like sending you to jail," said Jones, "but you've got to be punished. So we'll take a photograph of you for the Rogues' Gallery."

The human scarecrow promised complete reform and they stood him up and took his picture.

About a week later, still in his rags, he stood beside the rancher's desk.

"What can I do for you?" Jones said, looking up.

"If you please, Mr. Jones," said the object, "kin you spare one of them pictures to send to my kinsfolk?"—Popular Magazine.

The Jarr Family

By Roy L. McCardell

Mr. Jarr Isn't Hunting for Adventure, but He Finds It.

"AH, there's nothing like a bracing autumn day for a walk!" said Mr. Jarr as he strode briskly forward over the park. "How much better than sitting tense and strained, in an automobile, getting no play of the muscles of legs chest and arms such as walking gives one—eh?"

Mrs. Jarr said no word in reply, but glided by. Mr. Jarr was a little surprised at her behavior, but seeing his shoe lace was untied, and noting the snail's pace at which his good lady was proceeding, he stooped down to tie the shoestring.

"I wonder what's the matter with her, anyway?" he mused. "Got a grouch, I suppose. Well, I'll jolly her out of that!"

But when he had finished with the shoe lace and had started on his way again he noticed with some astonishment that Mrs. Jarr was far in the distance and was striding on ahead at a five-mile-an-hour clip.

"Hey, there! Wait a minute!" he shouted.

But Mrs. Jarr never turned her head. He playfully threw some pebbles at her, and called again.

A thick-set man, who had alighted from a buggy and was engaged in tacking up yellow tin signs lauding "Beau Brummel Plug, a Gentleman's Chew," turned to Mrs. Jarr as she passed him and said:

"Lady, if that guy is follering you, I'll crack him on the bean with this hammer."

"It's only my husband," said Mrs. Jarr, with a sweet smile at the thick-set man. "We're just out for a walk."

The tobacco-sign man scratched his head. He was a single man and didn't understand these things. And as he drove past the Jarrs again on his sign-tacking duties he regarded them with a puzzled look.

"What did that fresh rooster say to you?" asked Mr. Jarr, when, somewhat breathless, he caught up to his spouse.

"He offered to protect me when you tried to hit me with a rock," said Mrs. Jarr.

"Why, I didn't try to hit you. I just rolled a couple of small pebbles after you to attract your attention," explained Mr. Jarr. "He had his nerve with him!"

But Mrs. Jarr strode on and never turned to see.

"What's the matter with you?" asked Mr. Jarr. "I thought we were going to have a nice walk together!"

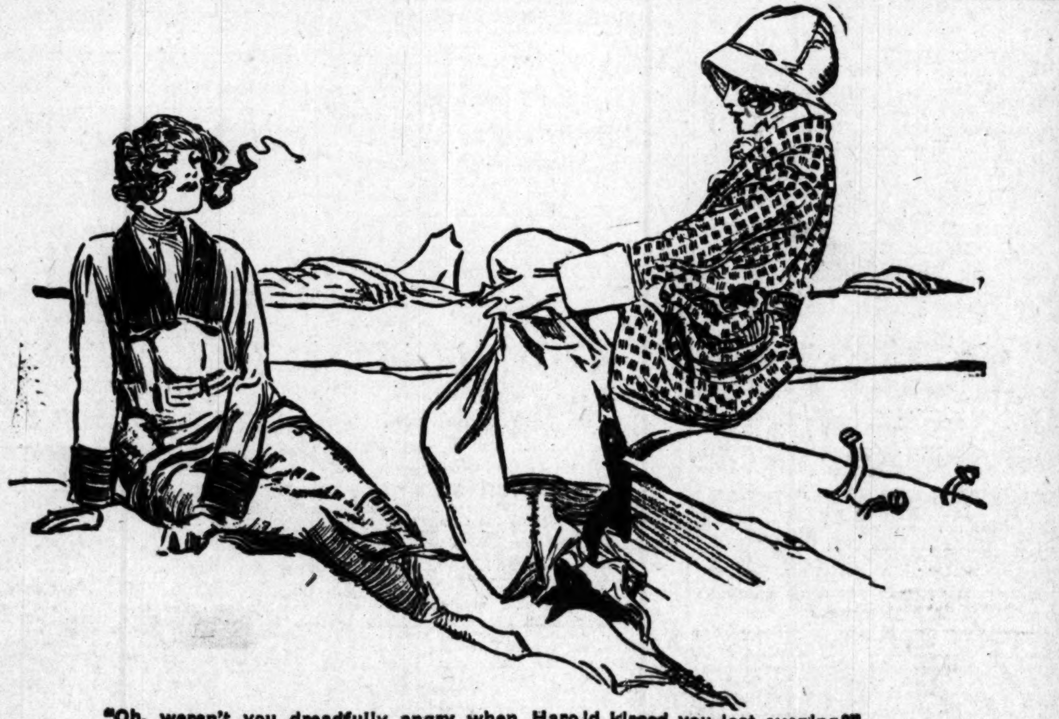
"Aren't we walking?" was the reply.

"Yes, we are walking," conceded Mr. Jarr. "But we don't seem to be enjoying ourselves."

Just then an autumnal grasshopper lit in her hair. With a wild scream she threw herself in his arms, crying:

"Save me!" Mr. Jarr slew the grasshopper in gallant style.

"Oh," cried Mrs. Jarr, after her fright had subsided, "how that scared me! But we are having lovely adventures out here in the lonely solitudes (they were passing a busy brickyard), but you might chat with me and be gay, if we are going gypsying!"



"Oh, weren't you dreadfully angry when Harold kissed you last evening?"
"Yes—terribly—every time."
